INTRODUCTION

The introduction should be clear and provide the issue to be discussed in the manuscript. The introduction contains the background, research context, research problems, problem-solving plans, research objectives, literature study results. All matters relating to theoretical study exposure, literature review, or selected conceptual definitions are relevant to support the writer's argument. The arguments aim to show which is the best of previous researches, to show the main limitation of the earlier studies, to show what do you hope to achieve (to solve the boundary) and to show the scientific merit or novelties of the paper. Hypothesis research (if any) must be built from theoretical concepts and supported by empirical studies (previous analysis). The authors should end the paragraph with a comment on the significance concern identification of the issue and objective of the research.
Use reference manager the APA style.

METHOD

The method is optional for original research articles. This method is written descriptively and should provide a statement regarding the methodology of the research. This method gives an idea to the reader through the techniques used.

RESULTS AND DISCUSSION

This section is the most essential section of your article. The analysis or results of the research should be clear and concise. The results should summarize (scientific) findings rather than providing data in great detail. Please highlight differences between your results or findings and the previous publications by other researchers.
The research result and discussion section contain the results of the research findings and their ensuing discussions. The findings acquired from the results of the conducted research should be written with the additional support of adequate data. The research results and findings should be able to resolve or provide explanations to the question stated in the introduction.

1. Sub-heading of the discussion

Following the main headings should be provided in the manuscript while preparing. The separation between main headings, sub-headings and sub-sub headings should be numbered in the paper with the following example:

2. Sub-heading of the discussion
3. Sub-heading of the discussion

Tables and Figures are presented centre and cited in the manuscript. The figures should be clearly readable and at least have a resolution of 300 DPI (Dots Per Inch) for excellent printing quality. Each picture must be given a title image (Image Description) below the image and be numbered in Arabic numerals followed by the middle image title. Each table must be given a table title (Table Caption) and be counted in Arabic numerals at the top of the table, followed by the table title. Figures, tables and diagrams/schemes must be placed in columns between groups of text or if they are too large in the middle of the page.

The concluding statement should contain a summary and suggestion. The summary should exemplify the answers provided to the hypothesis and/or research objectives or acquired findings. The summary should not contain repetition of research results and discussions, and it should instead contain a summation of research results and conclusions as expected in the research objective or hypothesis. The suggestions should present matters that will subsequently be conducted concerning the research's ensuing concepts.
