Round #1 Pick #7 Noah Laus LW Toronto Jr Canadiens

Noah has a powerful shot and has an effective compete level. He is dangerous when he has the puck on his stick each shift. He has the translatable skills to be an impactful player in his rookie year in the OHL. I project him as a #1 Winger who is a Power Forward at the OHL Level.

Round #4 Pick #70 Karsten Barbeau C Ottawa Myers Automotive

Karsten is a big power forward who is not afraid to utilize his body every shift. He is consistently first to the puck and uses his active stick to win puck battles. His shot is deceptive and powerful. He executes many leg fakes that open up shooting lanes as the defenders fall for the fake. Kasten had an effective weight transfer. He was able to transfer all of his weight from his back leg to his front leg, and this allowed him to get all of his power to the front of his body. I project him as a Top 6 Power Forward at the OHL Level.

Round #5 Pick #96 Evan Pahanich RD York Simcoe Express

Evan is a big mobile D who is able to facilitate the puck each shift. His size allows him to evaluate all of his options and execute crisp passes up the ice that advance the play. His physicality made him tough to play against. In the defensive zone, he utilized his body and won many net front battles due to his strength as he boxed out the opponent. I project Evan as a Top 6 Defensive Defenseman at the OHL Level.

Round #6 Pick #110 Nick Soliman G Niagara North Stars

Nick is a big mobile goalie who can track pucks effectively. Nick has strong rebound control as he rarely allows second-chance opportunities and bounces on the puck in his crease. Nick moves post to post very quickly, and this closes off open areas in the net. I project Nick as a #1 Hybrid Goalie at the OHL Level.

Round #6 Pick #123 Christopher Weiss LD Detroit HoneyBaked 15's

Christopher is a physical two-way D who is reliable in all three zones. He uses his effective hockey sense and makes effective decsion's with the puck under pressure. He is able to process the play quickly and hit his teammates in stride with a pass. I project Christopher as a Top 6 two-way D at the OHL Level.

Round #7 Pick #130 Tyler Bruce LW Toronto Jr Canadiens

Tyler was one of my favourite players in the draft class due to his offensive upside. I had him as a Top 30 pick personally, as I liked his skating and his ability to control the pace of play due to his processing speed. So this pick here is a steal in my opinion. I project Tyler as a two-way Top 6 Physical Winger at the OHL Level.

Round #8 Pick #150 MacLean Chisholm C Quinte Red Devils

MacLean is a good-sized forward who has a powerful shot. MacLean has the ability to shoot off a pass, and this makes him a threat all over the offensive zone. MacLean is an effective skater. He has showcased strong depth in his stride, which helped him get by multiple opponents off the rush and protect the puck. I project MacLean as an Offensive Bottom 6 Forward at the OHL Level.

Round #9 Pick #166 Vincent Arnone RW Detroit Little Caesars 15's

Vincent is a tough two-way player who is able to create plays under pressure. I really like this pick here for them as I believe if he reports, he will be impactful in his rookie year. I project Vincent as a two-way Top 6 Forward at the OHL Level.

Round #9 Pick #170 Cam Anderson RW Chicago Reapers 15's

I only saw Cam at Silver Stick, and what I liked about him was his skating and hockey sense. His quick feet allowed him to be one step ahead of the opponent and change direction effectively. Cam made strong decisions with the puck when he had space. He was patient and evaluated all of his options before making a pass.

Round #11 Pick #210 Gavin Hicks RD North York Rangers

Gavin was one of my favourite Ds all year. He was able to facilitate the play due to his puck skills and maintain his gaps when he defended the rush. Gavin had the ability to read coverage well, and this allowed him to understand where to be in the defensive zone. I was surprised he fell this far, as I had him much higher near the Top 60 range in my rankings. I project Gavin as a two-way Top 6 Defenseman at the OHL Level.

Round #12 Pick #230 Trent Enns LD Niagara North Stars

Trent is a strong shutdown D with an active stick. He wasn't afraid to throw his body around and got opponents off the puck consistently. He had strong puck skills as he was able to maneuver around opponents and facilitate the puck up the ice due to his quick hands. I project Trent as a Bottom 4 Defensive Defenseman at the OHL Level.

Round #13 Pick #250 Keaton Fitzpatrick LD Ajax-Pickering Raiders

Keaton is a strong shutdown D who uses his size to break up plays when defending the rush. Keaton has a long reach and executed many poke checks to get the puck off opponents. Keaton has strong edge work, and this allowed him to pivot effectively and stay in front of his opponent. I project Keaton as a Bottom 4 Defensive Defenseman at the OHL Level.

Round #14 Pick #270 Cullen Kerslake RD Huron Perth Lakers

Cullen is a quick mobile D who can move the puck. Cullen executes many crisp passes out of the defensive zone, and this allows his team to execute clean zone exits and accelerate up the ice. Cullen was able to see the play before it developed, and he was able to hit his teammates with a pass ahead of the opponent. His effective hockey sense allowed him to be one step ahead of the opponent. I project Cullen as a Top 4 two-way Defenseman at the OHL Level.

Round #15 Pick #290 Kaiden Khayat LD Markham Majors

Kaiden is a competitive D who is tough to play against. Kaiden is able to pin his opponents against the boards and utilize his active stick to get the puck off his opponents. Kaiden has strong puck skills. Kaiden was able to use the boards to his advantage and advance the puck up to his teammate out of the defensive zone. I project Kaiden as a Bottom 4 two-way Defenseman at the OHL Level.
