Compare retailers using authorization, current stock, transparent prices, contact information, and published policies. For delivery, destination eligibility and receiving requirements are essential considerations.

Searches such as “Dispensaries Delivery” and “Dispensaries That Deliver” may identify businesses to investigate. Review their official information before treating a listing as confirmation of coverage or service availability.

Should You Visit a Cannabis Store or Check Delivery Options?

What to Look for in a Calgary Cannabis Retailer

Look for consistent business details, understandable product descriptions, clear prices, and accessible support. Ask where current return, cancellation, privacy, and delivery policies can be reviewed. Recent customer feedback can provide context, but individual experiences do not guarantee future service performance.

Store Information, Legal Compliance, and Customer Support

Alberta's minimum cannabis purchasing age is 18. AGLC requires age verification for deliveries and online purchases collected in-store, so completing an online transaction does not replace the identification check.

AGLC limits individual delivery orders to 30 grams of dried cannabis or its equivalent. Calgary prohibits recreational cannabis consumption in public places and consumption in vehicles; never drive while impaired. Review AGLC's cannabis guidance and Calgary's cannabis rules for official information.
