INTRODUCTION (Times New Roman 11, 1.5 spasi)

The introduction presents the background of the study, the state of the art (current condition referencing existing research), the statement of gap (the specific void the researchers aim to address), and the research objective. Include supporting research findings that reinforce this study, along with its novelty.

METHOD (Times New Roman 11, 1.5 spasi)

Outlines the study design, key materials and equipment, experimental procedures, and data analysis methods in a clear and systematic manner to ensure reproducibility. Include ethical approval details if human or animal subjects are used, and ensure all supporting tables or figures are properly numbered and described.

RESULTS AND DISCUSSIONS (Times New Roman 11, 1.5 spasi)

This section contains an in-depth discussion regarding the data obtained. Compare the findings with other relevant studies or existing theories.

CONCLUSIONS (Times New Roman 11, 1.5 spasi)

Presents a concise summary of the main findings that directly answer the research objectives. This section should highlight the key outcomes, clinical or practical implications, and the scientific contribution of the study.

REFERENCES (Times New Roman 11, spasi)

Compiled using reference management software (e.g., Mendeley, EndNote, Zotero) in Vancouver style. Include more than 10 references supporting the study.

Table/Graph/Figure Formatting (Times New Roman 10, single line spacing) Place tables, graphs, and figures at the intended position within the manuscript body using the following format:

Table 1. Table Title

No	Column 1	Column 2

Figure 1. Figure Title

Include high-quality, clear images. Position the title below the image alongside an accompanying description.

Graph 1. Graph Title

Include high-quality, clear graphs. Position the title below the graph along with an accompanying explanation.
