About the BADIE research lab

The BADIE is a research lab dedicated to exploring, learning, and disseminating on topics related to understanding how all people's cultures affect their behavior from a behavior analytic perspective. The faculty founder and advisor of this lab is Dr. Sarah Lechago, BCBA-D, LBA, Associate Professor in Behavior Analysis at the UHCL. Dr. Lechago and her graduate students in the BADIE lab engage in a variety of scholarship and projects including, but not limited to, experimental research, training and clinical service provision to families and groups in Texas border towns through their project, "Proyecto La Frontera" (Borderlands Project), development of mentorship systems for high school students from historically underserved groups, and establishing a resource repository focused on culturally responsive care. The lab was officially established in the Summer of 2020 and it's founding lab members include: Sarah Lechago (faculty advisor), Emma Walker (lab coordinator), Brianna Banks, Amanda King, Ellie Hardesty, Mary Signorella, Jennifer Carrera, Clarissa Martinez, Jennifer Nguyen, Lorena Galvan, and Danika Bosch-Greer.

Dr. Lechago wants to offer special recognition to Kenya Myles who graduated from the Behavior Analysis master's program in 2020. Kenya was instrumental in helping Dr. Lechago in planning to develop this lab and initiate some of its current projects.

About the BADIE Resource Repository

The BADIE lab has created a repository that includes a multitude of resources focused on culturally responsive care from a variety of disciplines and perspectives. The repository includes academic and non-academic materials that include, but are not limited to, books, experimental research, non-experimental articles, podcasts, websites, documentaries, and more. The BADIE lab is dedicated to expanding this resource on a monthly basis. We value learning from other disciplines and the incredible potential of building a repository that includes resources of all types from all disciplines and perspectives. We would like to share these resources and we invite others to share with us. We also invite you to share the link to this repository far and wide. If you have a resource on the topic of culturally responsive care that you would like to contribute, please email it to: uhclbadie@gmail.com. We hope this repository will support research, practice, learning, and perhaps inspire collaborations. Thank you!
