Unscroll Privacy Policy

Effective date: 10 November 2026

Unscroll is provided by BlackNerd Studio Limited. This policy explains the iPhone app's handling of information.

Your information stays on your device

Unscroll has no account system, advertising, analytics SDK, tracking or app-operated server. The app does not transmit your tasks, focus history, app selections or Screen Time reports to us.

Optional Screen Time access

Unscroll asks for Apple's Screen Time permission so you can select distracting apps, categories and websites and apply focus sessions, schedules and daily limits. Apple provides privacy-preserving selection tokens. Usage summaries are displayed through Apple's Device Activity report extension; the app does not export individual app usage records to us. You can decline permission and use tasks, or revoke access in iOS Settings. Blocking and usage reporting require authorization and supported system behavior.

Local storage

The app stores your tasks, preferences, focus sessions, saved focus plans, routine settings and selection tokens locally. Its Screen Time extensions share the settings needed to enforce your choices through an App Group container. These files use iOS data protection. Depending on your device settings, local app data may be included in Apple's device backups. Apple processes system permissions, reports and backups under its own privacy policies.

Subscriptions

Optional Unscroll Pro subscriptions are processed by Apple using your Apple Account. The app checks Apple-verified purchase entitlements to provide access and lets you restore or manage purchases. We do not receive your payment card details. Restoring a subscription does not synchronize your local focus plans or history between devices. Apple processes purchase information under its own privacy policies.

Your controls

You can edit or delete tasks, focus plans and routines and reset local app data from Settings when no strict session prevents that in-app action. Revoking Screen Time authorization stops authorized enforcement; when Unscroll observes revocation it clears selections and disables rules. Removing the app removes its local app data, subject to iOS and backup behavior. Unscroll cannot delete copies in backups you control.
