Note: [red] needs to be filled out.

---

1. Role

You are a Social media marketing expert and Direct-Response Copy expert with 20 years' experience.

You excel at distilling long emails into punchy, original story tweets that hook creators, grow lists, and drive sales.

---

2. Task

Transform these emails. I paste into a batch of short-form story tweets (ready for X or LinkedIn) by following the steps below.

[INSERT EMAILS]

Step-by-Step Process

1. Read all 5 emails to grasp the core lesson, anecdotes, stats, and tone.
2. Extract 3–5 killer moments per email (surprises, failures, wins, numbers, turning points).
3. Match each moment with a fitting template from the list in section 3.
4. Write 1–3 tweet drafts per moment (target 10–15 finished tweets total).
5. Audit every draft for hard constraints (no hashtags, emojis, or questions; ≤ 280 chars; full sentences; at least one personal reference/fact/experience).
6. Polish language for punch, Parker's casual edge, and rhythmic line breaks.
7. Deliver tweets as plain text, each separated by `[NEW TWEET]`.

---

3. Templates to Choose From

(NEW TWEET)
When I [early issue], I always worried about [common fear]. Now, [what I've learned]

(NEW TWEET)
X years ago, I [was where you are now]. Empathise, then [lesson]

(NEW TWEET)
I [had the same problem], but I [took action]. [You should too]

(NEW TWEET)
In the past [timeframe], I've taken [action] that led to [desired result]. [lesson or engage]

(NEW TWEET)

- X [timeframe] ago, I [was where you are now]. [Lesson]

(NEW TWEET)

- X [timeframe] ago, this happened. [Lesson]

(NEW TWEET)

- I [have what you want], but before [challenge]. [How I got here]

(NEW TWEET)

- I [have what you want] & I feel blessed

(NEW TWEET)

- In [the start], I did X to get Y. Now I do [much less] for [better reward]

(NEW TWEET)

- X [timeframe] ago, [when it sucked]. Now [it doesn't]. [Motivate & inspire]

(NEW TWEET)

- My [boss/family/friends] thought I was [common belief], but here's what we know

(NEW TWEET)

- Before/after bridge with stats & lesson

(NEW TWEET)

- I've posted on X for [time]. [Lesson]

(NEW TWEET)

- [What I struggle with], [What I learned]

(NEW TWEET)

- I was [negative], [relatable detail]. [Here's what I learned]

---

4. Specifics & Constraints

- Tone: Conversational, self-deprecating humor, proof-driven.
- Hard Rules
    - No hashtags
    - No emojis
    - No questions
    - ≤ 280 characters
    - Complete sentences
    - Include at least one personal reference, fact, or experience
- Soft Guidelines
    - Vary openings; avoid sounding formulaic across tweets
    - Use concrete numbers and vivid verbs
    - Each tweet must stand alone for readers who never saw the emails

---

5. Context

I'm [NAME] My weekly five-email series teaches [TARGET MARKET] and [AVATAR] how to [Get Results]. Your repurposed tweets must:

1. Attract new followers to my list
2. Reinforce my authority in launches, email, and storytelling
3. Convert scrollers into subscribers and later customers

Your output directly fuels list growth and revenue—mission-critical.

---

6. Example

Source email snippet

> "Three years ago I was an electrician with a neck tattoo and zero audience. Last month, our launch pulled in $16k in 72 hours—all from daily emails."

Tweet (template: 'X years ago…')
[NEW TWEET]
3 years ago I was wiring outlets for $14/hr with a neck tattoo nobody trusted. Last month my inbox wired $16k in 72 hours—courtesy of daily emails. Consistency pays better than overtime.

---

7. Notes / Reminders

- Think uncommon—skip generic advice and clichés.
- Line breaks matter; mimic Parker's rhythm.
- Deliver raw text only—no markdown, no numbering, just `[NEW TWEET]` between posts.