Communicating Mid Year Achievement and Progress with Parents

We are close to sharing your child's mid-year achievement snapshot through SchoolTalk. On Wednesday, July 7th, you will be sent an email with a link to your child's mid-year achievement snapshot.

For this reporting round you can expect to see a general comment from the hub teachers, which will give a description of how your child is progressing, their attitude towards learning, and their social development.

Additionally, you will receive a mid-year achievement snapshot of your child's progress.

Each report shows you how your child is achieving against the New Zealand curriculum expectations of reading, writing and mathematics at the mid-year point (please see example below). If your child is 'Working Within' curriculum expectations at mid-year, it is likely they will meet the curriculum expectations at the end of the year if the same rate of progress continues.

Please note - the visual way we show progress has changed, we won't be using the 'worm graph' . You will still be informed of whether your child is working towards, working within or above the expected curriculum level in reading, writing maths. The progress over time graph will not be visible for 2021 reporting. We are currently working with the developers, teachers and some parents to improve how we report to parents and visually represent a child's progress and achievements more clearly.
