<h1> Different Types of Clothing Labels for Daycare <h1>

Sending your tiny tot off to daycare can be an emotional experience. You don't need to add any more stress to the process! So, save yourself from worrying about lost clothing with Stuck On You's selection of the best clothing labels for daycare.

But just what do you label for daycare? No matter the age of your little one, you know a second (or even third) change of clothes is always a good idea. Accidents happen! Food spills, toilet mishaps, grass, mud, textas, paint- the list goes on!

You'll want to label those extra onesies, shirts, pants, jumpers, and socks to help keep them from going missing or being confused with another child's belongings. If an item of clothing does go missing, it'll easily find its way back to you, thanks to its clear name label.

Let's find out more about the different clothing labels available so you can decide which option is best to keep up with the busy life of your child's daycare clothes!

<h2> Best Clothing Labels for Daycare <h2>

<h3> Iron-On Labels </h3>

Iron-on labels are easy to design and apply. They only require a one-time application, and then they'll stay firmly in place through wear and tear and many wash cycles.

At Stuck On You, we offer a fantastic variety of customisable iron-on labels for kids' clothing. Choose from various colours, fonts, sizes, and icons like animals, foods, and toys. Shapes include round, square, triangle, star, and heart.

Sizes range from mini to large, as well as mixed, so that you can find the best fit for different clothing items.

And when it comes to text, customisation can go beyond just adding your child's name. Including phone numbers or addresses will help any items that go astray be easily returned to you, saving you time tracking them down and money replacing them.

<h3> Name Stamps <h3>

Name stamps use permanent ink to stamp your child's name directly on their clothing. These stamps are self-inking, so you don't have to worry about messy ink pads or pads that dry out.

Our name stamps work on cotton, linen, and some blended fabrics. The ink can withstand washes up to 95°C, so it won't fade on most washing machine cycles and in dryers.

If your little one has skin sensitivities, we've got it covered with our dermatologically tested ink.

Customisation for name stamps includes text and the option of one simple icon in one colour.

<h3> Clip-On Tags <h3>

Another option for clothes labels for daycare is clip-on tags. These small clips can be made of plastic, fabric, or leather.

Once labelled with your child's name, clip them onto tags, seams, or hemlines of clothing garments. They won't leave holes and are particularly great for bags, hats, and towels.

Stuck On You clip-on tags come with a user-friendly tag applicator, 25 personalised tags, and 25 pins to simply clip and go!

<h3> Sew-In Labels <h3>

Sew-in fabric labels are personalised with your child's name and then machine or hand-sewn directly into their clothes, typically on the tag. If your sewing skills are up to scratch, these labels should be secure once attached and survive many wash cycles and normal wear and tear.

However, sew-in labels can be time-consuming to apply, especially if you don't have a sewing machine or sewing skills. Additionally, the fabric used for most sew-in labels is usually not as strong as iron-on label material or name stamp ink. In time, the labels may fade, loosen, or fray.

<h2> FAQs About Clothing Labels <h2>

<h3> Should I Label My Kid’s Clothes With Their Full Name? <h3>

The best way to label clothes for daycare is often with your child’s full name to give any wayward clothes a better chance of being returned. Imagine if another child at daycare has the same first name or even initials as your tot!

<h3> Do I Label Nappies for Daycare?<h3>

It depends on the policy of the daycare centre. Some request that individual nappies be labelled, while others may have a cubby for each child’s belongings, including their nappies.

For peace of mind, you can label cloth nappies with iron-on labels or name stamps and disposable nappies with a permanent marker.

<h3> Can You Label Kids' Clothes With a Sharpie? <h3>

The Sharpie brand of permanent markers is known for its ability to write on almost any surface. So yes, you can label kids' clothes with one for a quick and cheap labelling solution.

However, a Sharpie won't create a clean, legible name on fabric and will fade with each wash. Better, more long-lasting alternatives include iron-on labels, name stamps, and clip-on tags.

<h3> How Do I Label My Baby Bottles for Daycare? <h3>

Use Stuck On You's dry-erase bottle labels, daycare labels and bottle bands so none of your baby's bottles go missing in the hubbub of their daycare centre.

<h3> Is It Safe To Label Kids' Clothing? <h3>

Using iron-on labels and name stamps is generally safe for labelling kids' clothing, provided the labels are securely attached and the stamp's ink is non-toxic.

Clip-on and sew-in labels, on the other hand, can pose a choking hazard if detached, so they're not the safest option for young children.
