Market Summary

Wall Street Futures Surge Ahead of Black Friday Half-Day

Nasdaq 100 futures jumped approximately 2.4% to 2.9% and S&P 500 futures rose roughly 1.6% to 1.8% as AI buyers returned following the Thanksgiving break. The cash session closes early at 1 p.m. ET, where thin liquidity could exaggerate price movements.

SPY Closed Wednesday at $716.70 After Intraday Swing

Prior to Thanksgiving, the S&P 500 fell as much as 3.2% and the Nasdaq 4.6% before recovering to close down 0.25% and 0.62%, respectively. The Nasdaq 100 briefly touched bear-market territory (down 20% from its October peak) before closing above that threshold.

AI Trade Wobbles, Then Rebounds

Nvidia, AMD, and other semiconductor equities rallied in pre-market trading as concerns regarding export restrictions abated, despite an S&P CreditWatch Negative placement on Nvidia. Micron and Sandisk experienced declines following a lowered DRAM price forecast, alongside added pressure from new tariff proposals.

Hot Inflation and Strong GDP Lock in December Fed Hike

October PCE rose 3.8% year-over-year, core PCE reached 3.3%, and Q3 GDP was revised upward to 4.3%. Market participants view a 25-basis-point rate hike on December 9 as near certain. The U.S. Dollar Index hovers near 103.8, remaining close to a 22-month high.

Oil Rebounds on Middle East Supply Fears

WTI crude rose about 2.7% to near $86, while Brent crude settled at $96.57 following Houthi attacks on Saudi refineries and mine strikes on oil tankers in the Strait of Hormuz. Both benchmarks remain on track for their first weekly gain in four weeks, though Brent is still down nearly 20% for the month. OPEC+ meets Sunday and is expected to maintain output targets.

Bitcoin Rebounds to About $61,800

Bitcoin advanced 2.2% after touching $57,300 on Wednesday, a drop that triggered approximately $515 million in position liquidations. Bitcoin remains roughly 52% below its October 2025 peak, with November spot ETF net outflows near $5 billion. Technical analysts monitor $55,000 as key support and $65,000 as a confirmation of recovery.

EUR/USD Steady Near 1.10

The euro trades near 1.097 following a rebound from a 19-month low of 1.0881 earlier in the week. Spain's Pablo Hernández de Cos was named the next European Central Bank (ECB) president, with a December ECB rate hike fully priced in. UOB projects range-bound trading between 1.0920 and 1.1040.

Standouts (Unusual Moves)

GraniteShares 2x Long NVDA Daily ETF (NVDL)

- Date: Mon, Nov 23
- Move: $16.70 ↗ 61.67%
- Details: Nvidia's board reinstating Jensen Huang as CEO less than two weeks after his resignation drove a historic rebound in the leveraged fund tied to the chipmaker. Nvidia rose about 31%, its best day since 2003, adding roughly $888 billion in market value, while the S&P 500 gained about 4.7% as AI stocks recovered. Several analysts upgraded Nvidia, with Bernstein and Melius moving to buy-equivalent ratings, though an SEC accounting probe remains an overhang. NVDL traded ~151 million shares (far above its 20M average) and edged up 1.9% after hours. Due to its daily-reset structure, multi-day returns diverge from twice Nvidia's cumulative move.

Direxion Daily Semiconductor Bear 3X ETF (SOXS)

- Date: Mon, Nov 23
- Move: $49.11 ↘ 40.95%

- Details: Plunged as a violent AI-led relief rally hit chip stocks after Huang's reinstatement. Nvidia closed up ~31%, S&P 500 rose 4.7%, Nasdaq 100 gained ~7%, iShares Semiconductor ETF (SOXX) jumped ~13.6%, and bullish SOXL gained ~40%. SOXS volume reached 1.9x its average. Strategists such as BTIG warned the bounce may not mark the final market low, with a December Fed rate hike still anticipated.

Silver Futures (SIUSD)

- Date: Thu, Nov 26
- Move: $43.73 ↗ 9.17%
- Details: Rebounded sharply from a 52-week low near $38 due to short covering and equity market recovery during holiday-thinned liquidity. Headwinds persist, including high core PCE (3.3%), ~99% priced December Fed hike expectations, a strong dollar, and gold near 15-month lows ($3,550). Silver remains down roughly two-thirds from its near-$122 record. Resistance is flagged at $45.
