MODERN JOURNALISM

Course Abstract

This semester long course introduces students to the principles of journalism. Students will read and discuss current examples of solid journalism and its ethics. Students will generate story ideas of interest to them, research background information, interview sources, and write for publication. In addition to contributing to the school magazine, students will create and publish podcasts and video broadcasts. This is not a textbook course; the world is our resource.

Primary Resources

Units

Unit:

Unit Focus:
Duration:
Competencies & Standards:	Common Core: English Language Arts: ● Not specified for this Unit
Vision of a Learner
Long-Term Transfer Goals	Students will be able to independently use their learning to… ● Not specified for this Unit
Understandings	Students will understand that…	Students will keep considering...

& Essential Questions	• Not specified for this Unit	• Not specified for this Unit
Acquisition of Knowledge & Skill	Students will know... • Not specified for this Unit	Students will be skilled at… • Not specified for this Unit
Assessment Evidence Performance Task(s)
Learning Activities		