A Quick Recap on my Journey

Back in 2018 when I was just starting out my career in Overwatch, I applied to Team Canada's world cup tryouts. After failing to advance very far in the tryouts I made it my personal goal to improve as much as I could so that I would make the team in 2019. At this period in time I wasn't very active in the competitive scene and spent most of my time grinding ranked and subbing in for teams when I could. This would end up costing me quite a bit as I would miss out on learning many concepts that are normally learned from scrimming and to this day I feel like I am still playing catch up due to my lack of scrim experience and coaching.

I spent the next two years living in the United States as a full time student and backup Flex Support for Harrisburg University's Overwatch team where the team lived and practiced together in a LAN environment. I had to overcome many things in the last year so that I could achieve one of my goals I set out for myself: I had made Team Canada as a backup Flex Support and the experience was incredible. I got my first taste playing with and against some of the best players in Overwatch and I quickly learned how the best players are able to punish mistakes in the blink of an eye. I had gotten to witness firsthand many different leadership styles and communication structures during my time with Team Canada and I have tried to model myself after what I had learned from those players and coaches so that I could grow as not only a player, but as a person as well.

Earlier in the year I had gotten the opportunity to play with Phase 2 in the Season 1 Open Division playoffs with a last minute roster that would go on an incredible Cinderella run where we would finish 3rd and qualify for the upcoming Contenders Trials. Unfortunately I had to step down due to my obligations with Harrisburg University's esports team. I personally thought I performed incredibly well in my World Cup tryouts, in the HUE Fest collegiate tournament as well as in Phase 2's run and I couldn't shake the feeling that I was nowhere close to hitting my full potential as a Flex Support.

In the Spring of 2020 I made one of the most difficult decisions I have ever made in my life. I chose to leave halfway through my Overwatch Collegiate career and abandon my full ride scholarship. I felt like I could not live with myself if I did not give everything I had to follow my dream.

In late May I decided to create and scout the talent that would play under the name Last Hope instead of joining a previously existing team. Last Hope was quickly picked up to represent Skyfoxes in the July Contenders Trials. After July Trials the players went separate ways and Skyfoxes disbanded. With only a few days left before the roster lock for the upcoming July Open Division, I decided to scout another round of players for Last Hope. We would finish 17th place. With a few weeks between seasons, I would go and scout some t3 talent that would replace the players that had left. In the August tournament Last Hope would go on to finish 4th in the Season 4 Open Division. Since making my decision to pursue Overwatch full time, Last Hope has played in 4/5 of the North Americans Season 2 Contenders Trials and was one win off qualifying for November

Contenders and securing a spot in the 2020 Gauntlet tournament. In the last few months I have gotten more scrim experience than I have in my entire career. I am constantly improving and I have no plans on stopping. I will prove to myself and to anyone that has ever doubted me: I have the dedication to keep improving so that I can make it into Contenders and then one day into the Overwatch League.
