The Nth Power believes in the healing power of music. Featuring guitarist Nick Cassarino, bassist Nate Edgar and drummer Nikki Glaspie, the seasoned trio delivers a transcendent blend of soul, funk, rock and rhythm and blues far greater than the sum of its parts. Multi-part vocal harmonies and elevated musicianship inspires audiences to dance, groove, make love or just stand there with goose bumps.

The Nth Power's electric live performances have been flooring audiences ever since the group first aligned in New Orleans during Jazz Fest. The trio's individual music credentials include collaborating with artists like Beyonce, Snarky Puppy, Maceo Parker, Dumpstaphunk, Big Daddy Kane and John Brown's Body. "It's my dream team," said bandleader and drummer Glaspie. "Each one of us is a songwriter, so when we get together, everything becomes that much stronger. We're going as far as you can go on the planet Earth and playing music."

After The Nth Power's breakout 2013 EP, Basic Minimum Skills Test, The Nth Power went on to release two acclaimed studio albums and two live albums – garnering national coverage in Relix, Modern Drummer, Huffington Post, Glide, Consequence, Okayplayer, Paste and Sirius XM Radio. Their latest album 'Never Alone' released in May 2026 via GroundUP Records.

They maintain New Orleans as their spiritual home, and the celebratory essence of that city's music culture is palpable in each performance. Simply put, there is something pretty magical happening in this band, and more than 10 years in they're only just getting started.