We have been rollerblading in Phy. Ed. for two weeks. Also it has been fun to play in the dark and sometimes in the light. Then next week we are done with rollerblading. We will play tag games and pirate games. Mr. S. had a baby and is a girl and her name is Hailie.

Will You Sign Here, John Hancock?

This week, the class continued its study of the American Revolution. A very important part of this history was John Hancock. The class read a book by Jean Fritz called Will You Sign Here, John Hancock? They discovered that John really, really liked being the center of attention. That's why he was elected to so many positions! He even became the President of the Second Continental Congress, where he was the first Signer of the Declaration of Independence.

Lots of Sick Kids!

Some sort of bug is definitely going around our classroom. Eight students have gotten sick this week! Some students have stayed home, and quite a few have tested with a high fever at school. Please remind children to wash their hands A LOT for the next few days. Hopefully everyone will be back at school on Monday!
