

Tab 1

Page 1–2

Text:

In an old mansion on a haunted hill
Lived a ghost with a dream and a steely will.

Illustration:

A grand, crooked mansion on a foggy hill under a full moon. In one window glows a soft light, where a friendly ghost peeks their head out with determination.

I'm thinking mansion on the right page, text on left, mid/big size font

Dark background, lighter around text OR white text

(Due to suggestion, mention why)

Page 3–4

Text:

With a whispery voice and a spectral grin
He declared: "This year, I'm gonna win!"

Illustration:

The ghost pumps a translucent fist in the air while standing before a mirror OR floating podium, practicing a campaign speech.

in a mansion to keep flow??

Definitely dark to not weirdly contrast

Page 5–6

Text:

He floated down to the village square,
Campaigning strong in the midnight air.

Illustration:

The ghost hovers through a sleepy village at night, placing posters, shaking paws with werewolves, and tipping his hat to vampires.

Soft yellow glow, from street lamps and stuff

Page 7–8

Text:

With posters taped on every tree:

“Vote for the Ghost, Vote Boo for Me!”

Illustration:

Trees and lampposts covered with campaign posters featuring slogans, smiling ghost portraits, and maybe some buttons or pins.

Page 9–10

Text:

“I’ll fix the roads with a ghostly touch

Lower your taxes, but not too much

No skeletons hiding inside my past

(Though in literal ones, my collection of friends is vast.)”

Illustration:

The ghost giving a speech to a crowd of diverse spooky creatures, there is general excitement among the crowd

Page 11–12

Text:

His platform shined with spooky flair:

Free cobwebs! Bats for every lair!

Transparent truth, no tricks, just treats

And ghost-friendly zones in all the streets.

Illustration:

A campaign board or chalkboard with fun promises, a vampire nodding approvingly, and cobwebs being handed out like ribbons.

Page 13–14

Text:

Reporters asked: “Aren’t you dead?”

He simply laughed and shook his head

“I may be gone, but I still care

About healthcare, schools, and clean cold air!”

Illustration:

A ghost at a press conference with monster reporters taking notes and holding floating microphones.

Page 15–16

Text:

He won the crowd, both dead and alive

With policies that made spirits thrive

Illustration:

A festive rally with balloons, dancing skeletons, clapping ghosts, and happy villagers with campaign signs.

Page 17–18

Text:

On voting day the lines were packed

Even zombies came, though barely intact

Illustration:

A voting booth line of diverse spooky beings. mummies, goblins, and lopsided zombies, holding ballots and coffee.

Page 19–20Text:

The ballots in, the people spoke

They cheered so loud, the graveyards woke

Illustration:

A ballot box overflows with votes as fireflies swirl, and spirits float up joyfully and zombies crawl from nearby graves.

Page 21–22Text:

Now in the in a house of white cement

The nation's first paranormal president!

Illustration:

The ghost in a presidential sash floats proudly through the spooky-decorated White House with portraits of other ghost leaders. (Think those portraits of old war heroes... but with spooky creatures)

Page 23–24Text:

So if your curtains move at night

Do not scream or flee in fright

It might just be our leader ghost

Drafting our laws from coast to coast

Illustration:

A cozy child's bedroom with a curtain gently swaying. Outside the window, the friendly ghost floats by with a briefcase and papers glowing in moonlight.

Tab 2

JUST THE TEXT:

(More likely to be outdated, ALSO, text was taken from my notes using ai, but all the writing is still mine)

In a mansion old on a haunted hill

Lived a ghost with a dream and a steely will.

With a whispery voice and a spectral grin

He declared: "This year, I'm gonna win!"

He floated down to the village square,

Campaigning strong in the midnight air.

With posters taped on every tree:

"Vote for the Ghost, Vote Boo for Me!"

"I'll fix the roads with a ghostly touch

Lower your taxes, but not too much

No skeletons hiding inside my past

(Though in literal ones, my collection of friends is vast.)"

His platform shined with spooky flair:

Free cobwebs! Bats for every lair!

Transparent truth, no tricks, just treats

And ghost-friendly zones in all the streets.

Reporters asked: "Aren't you dead?"

He simply laughed and shook his head

"I may be gone, but I still care

About healthcare, schools, and clean cold air!"

He won the crowd, both dead and alive

With policies that made spirits thrive
On voting day the lines were packed
Even zombies came, though barely intact
The ballots in, the people spoke
They cheered so loud, the graveyards woke
Now in a house of white cement
The nation's first paranormal president!
So if your curtains move at night
Do not scream or flee in fright
It might just be our leader ghost
Drafting our laws from coast to coast

Tab 3

Ideas:

Help kids learn some new words, (half because I don't want to screw with the cadence, so possibly just get good)

-do this by putting a glossary/word learning thing at the beginning

Words/concepts to consider including:

- Spectral
- Taxes
- Campaigning
- Steely
- Declare
- Transparent
- Healthcare
- Policies
- Thrive
- Ballots
- Paranormal
- Drafting

Damn me and my habit of using long words

I'm this close to just bumping up my age range

Illustration ideas/formatting ideas:

QUICK SKETCH

