Reflection – SELF-COMPASSION

Creating habits that cultivate a deep love and acceptance for yourself is key to sustainable happiness. Sadly, most people focus so much on caring for others that they often overlook themselves.

Like any habit, it takes consistency to stick. We all face struggles, big and small, internal and external. The pursuit of self-compassion allows us to face these obstacles with a sense that we are on our own team and part of a larger team. We can have feelings for our inherent value while addressing the things we seek to change. We can learn to tune out the critical inner voice that holds us back and establish a healthy and authentic sense of self.

Please share your SELF-COMPASSION experience by answering the questions below.
