Education is Important to Humanity

Mason Sead

Kendall College and Career Academy

Columbia University

Ms. Koletar

January 26, 2024

Did you know according to United States census Bureau "OCT. 11, 2023 — Total school enrollment experienced a growth of 1.3 million from 2021 to 2022, reaching a total of 75.2 million students enrolled…" and that's amazing, but many people around the globe don't have the opportunity to go to school which is unfair.In this essay, i am going to tell you about why Everyone should have a great education. The first reason is that Education offers more jobs than if you didn't go to school. The second reason is that it decreases inequalities. Lastly, the third reason is it influences health and mental health.

To start off, if you graduate from college there are many opportunities you'll have. Most likely one of them is getting a job, which would be really helpful. According to "Northeastern University","Having a bachelor's degree opens up rewarding opportunities that might have otherwise been inaccessible. For example, college graduates see 57 percent more job opportunities than non-graduates. A degree enables you to qualify for these additional opportunities and offers you more flexibility in where you choose to work." This evidence shows that if you graduate from college and get your bachelor's it opens a portal to many different careers. In addition School also prepares you for the future. I know this because According to "University of the People" studies show, "College degrees prepare students for a career, or for advancement within their current field. Higher education gives the training and skills necessary for success in a specific area. In addition, many careers require a degree for entry." This proves that education is key to success in life and important for many reasons.

Next, another reason why education is important is because it decreases inequalities. Education teaches kids that people are not meant to be discriminated against or judged on how they look. According to "Google" it states that, "Schools can be places where the children of rich and poor families can become friends, and the barriers of inequality are broken down. They can challenge the rules that perpetuate economic inequality in broader society, and give young people the tools to go into the world and build more equitable societies." This means when children are around responsible and mature teachers that challenge the children's boundaries the children would learn how to respect others on how they look on the outside and the inside. Furthermore, inequality is a big issue in society. In addition it's also creating a problem at schools all over the world. I know this because according to "MAHB" it states that, "Educational inequality is a major global crisis. It has played a role in economic problems, amplified the political deadlock, exacerbated the environmental predicament, and threatens to worsen the human rights crisis." This shows that inequalities are impacting the way kids learn and it needs to stop.

Finally, the last reason why education is important is because it influences physical health and mental health. Your physical and mental health are important no matter what position you're in. if you are at school and your both your physical and mental health are not at the right level they need to be you need help. Research has shown from VCU (Virginia Commonwealth University), "Americans with fewer years of education have poorer health and shorter lives, and that has never been more true than today. In fact, since the 1990s, life expectancy has decreased for people without a high school education. This proves that if you don't have an education, especially a good education you are expected to have a shortened life. The last reason why education influences physical health and mental health is that it improves it like PE (Physical Education) improves your physical health and ELA (English Language Arts) improves your mental health. According to Google thay have found that, "Education can improve mental health by broadening your intellectual, social and emotional horizons. Attending school can also expand your knowledge, help you meet new people, further your goals, improve your career and even help you build better coping mechanisms. This proves that your school cares about your mental state and how you think about yourself and others.

In conclusion I discussed that all people around the world should have an education. I supported my claim with three reasons. The first reason was that education offers jobs for your future. My second reason was education decreases inequality. My final reason is that education influences physical and mental health. Education is a human right and each person needs one.