

Character Details

Name: Samuel (no clever last name as of yet)

Age: 19

Gender: Male

Species: Chimera

Description:

Samuel is an amalgamation of several animals at once or a Chimera. His main body type is that of a deer, his build being slender and sleek. Samuel's head is that of an average male deer, complete with a nice set of horns. He has one original cervid ear on the left but the right ear is big, round and has white fur like a mouse's. Similarly, his right horn is a normal antler, but the right is a twisted rough horn of a ram. Samuel's teeth are a mixture of carnivore and herbivore, with razor teeth sharing a space with flat, blunt teeth and dispersed randomly. His midsection is a hodgepodge of many types of fur and patterns. From solid red and brown, to a pure white, to grey, and lastly white with a spotted cow pattern. His left arm has a spotted cheetah pattern, but the paw at the tip is webbed like an otter's. His right arm is jet black with sleek shiny fur like a labrador. The paw is a canine's, but it holds Samuel's strangest deformity. Instead of a thumb muscle, there is a solid block of metal as thick as his paw. Where his thumb would protrude from his hand there is instead a socket in which a small lightbulb can be placed. His legs are asymmetrical like the rest of him, the right leg has normal tan deer fur, but the ankle is covered in fine blue scales with a reptilian clawed foot. The left leg is covered in white wool and tipped with a three toed hoof. Lastly, his tail is long and puffy like a fox's but with the grey and black pattern of a raccoon's.

Bio:

Samuel was born to a young couple of anthro deer. His parents: Mable and Todd were recently married and on the path to starting a family. Neither parent had any affiliation with magic nor some kind of genetic disorder, and yet, Samuel was born as he was. As something extremely unique and different from anyone else. While his appearance was a shock to both parents, they loved him dearly, and attempted to provide the best life possible for him. However, this didn't stop everyone else from seeing the young child as a freak or monster. His entire childhood was filled with teasing and harassment from anyone other than the adults around him, who instead gave cold looks of disgust. Samuel was forced to hide the things that made him so strange, save for his large tail, and it was only his parents that were able to comfort him and provide love. But Sam had a secret that not even his parents knew about nor did anyone else for that matter. The light emitted from Samuel's "thumb" regardless of the lightbulb attached could control people. This ability allowed Samuel to do all sorts of mischievous things. He got good grades in school, he rarely had to pay for things, and best of all, he could take care of anyone that looked down upon him.

Abilities:

Samuel's one and only magical power is his ability to control other people through the light emitted from his "thumb". While the light bulb attached is always on by default, Samuel can control its brightness. It takes a strong, lasting glow for the light to have influence on a living being. It also requires the subject to be viewing the light directly (the closer the better). While Samuel's electricity transforms any lightbulb into a magic object, it does not have any effect on its durability. As a result, the small light bulbs that the lightbulb-socket accepts are at risk of burning out whenever Samuel performs his talent. Unfortunately, the hypnosis only lasts as long as the light is shining, once dim enough, whatever influence that was held over the subject ends almost immediately. The amount of control Samuel has over someone is also dependent on the brightness that they are exposed to. At the most, Samuel is capable of altering his subjects physical features. This too is only temporary, though it is capable of lasting much longer than the hypnosis.

Current Status:

As of now, Samuel is starting his own life as a young adult. While he is fairly independent, he still lives in his parent's home due to not being able to find a job. Every day he journeys outside to see what kind of things he can get away with. He's always carrying a box of fresh light bulbs for his hand (though they don't have very much most of the time.) While he doesn't usually interfere with everyone's life and cause trouble, he cannot stand people with bubbly personalities or optimists in general. His life has been consistently terrible, and seeing happiness in any form causes him distress.