

Hey Marvin,

Just watched your video on how to get a 750 credit score and found it super useful and, I feel much more confident using my credit card moving forward.

I wanted to reach out to you as I was looking over The #1 Ultimate Credit Handbook sales page and wanted to tell you that there's a new strategy you could implement into the page to make the reader more inclined to purchase from you.

I'd recommend you add things such as:

Using your personal story about the discovery of the things taught in the e-book, making a connection with the reader and "amplifying" their pains and desires, as this will give the reader a glimpse of how their life will change with your product.

And a more compelling headline to get the reader hooked. An example of this could be "It takes years of commitment to recover from a bad credit score right? WRONG! Learn my untold strategy to boost your credit faster than ever before!"

If you're open to this idea, let me know and we could hop on a quick call to discuss the details.

Let me know your thoughts.

Best regards,

Nick Romanacci