

Go Deep

$#!+ You Can't Say In Church

Christians Vote in More Than One Way

4.21.2024

How do you think faith should influence one's voting decisions?

The teaching suggests that the Bible can lead people to more liberal or conservative views. Why do you think this is the case?

How can people read the same text but come away with different political leanings?

The teaching critiques voting strictly along party lines or having single-issue litmus tests. Do you agree or disagree with this perspective? Why?

I (Phillip) want my vote to benefit all people, even non-Christians and those outside the U.S. Is this a reasonable approach or does it go too far? Explain your view.

Read Proverbs 20:28. What would a leader be like if they ruled with love?

How can we show love for our neighbors, even those with different political views, in the midst of partisan divides?

If you could ask one question about this teaching, what would it be?