Disposition

The defendant was accused of 3 counts of possession of an illegal firearm and 3 counts of threatening a government official. During the trial evidence was presented to why a search of a building took place at which the defendant was found and detained in. They later searched him and found firearms. He was found guilty on all the firearm possession counts due to the statute clearly implying that it would be per a firearm but only found guilty on one count of Threatening of a government official due to it not being clear whether it was per what was stated or if it was as the event as such I ruled that it would be threatening if it was an event.
