

Bronies Of Northern California - Bowlin' Bronies
[November 26th, 2011]

Everypony loves bowling right? This time around, the Bronies of Northern California headed to Dublin for a bowling party. 20 bronies altogether showed up. Needless to say, some of us weren't the greatest at bowling, but everypony had fun either way! Nearly everypony joined together and re-enacted scenes from 'The Cutie Pox' involving the Cutie Mark Crusaders spending their time bowling at the beginning of the episode!

Bronies of Northern California Meet-Up Site:

<http://www.meetup.com/Bronies-Of-Northern-California>

YouTube Channel:

<http://www.youtube.com/user/NorthCalBronies>

Twitter Feed:

<http://www.twitter.com/Bronyville>

Had an elegant time; my thanks to everybody who showed up! And the alley was quite pleased to have us! I think next time, though, I'll make some more concrete lunch/dinner plans, haha.

-Dee Cee

Had yet another great time at this meetup. Loved spending the time bowling with everypony and pulling off as many, Apple Bloom rolls, Sweetie Belle rolls, and Scootaloo bucks as we could without getting caught while even laughing our flanks off with everypony around our aisles who were watching us! Also enjoyed the store raids to Target and Toys “R” Us while meeting a random bronny who had no intention of coming to our meetup at the nearby Target. We certainly made his day! Also loved eating at Rigatoni’s with everypony and chatting with everypony at our table. All in all, this was a great meetup and one of the best so far!

-Michael (FangShaymin) & Ben

Bowling with the bronies: A meetup that was suggested just one day before ‘The Cutie Pox’ aired, and happened on a Saturday.

Obviously it was easy to find the bronies right off the bat since, as usual, the shirts and the merch were an immediate giveaway. After we all gathered up, it was time to start some bowling. When we had to enter our names, we didn’t go with our boring old names. We wanted the ponies to play along too! And so it came to be that Luna, Apple Bloom, Octavia, Derpy, and even Trollestia bowled with us. Of course we had to try the Cutie Mark Crusaders bowling techniques, and so it came to be that kicking balls, pushing them with our heads, and even our lips became a method for throwing balls. The Scootaloo proved to be efficient every now and then.

After bowling was done, it was time for the traditional raids of Target and Toys “R” Us, which proved to be somewhat lackluster if it wasn’t for the fact that during our Target raid, a random guy wearing the steam punk ponies shirt walked towards us and was wondering what we were doing. Out of the blue, and in complete randomness, we found a bronny whom, unfortunately, didn’t stick with us. We ended up our meetup at a local Italian restaurant where we kept discussing about our favorite cartoon ponies, checking out the daily drawfriend, and the latest pony projects! Another great meetup for the NorCal Bronies!

-TGPGluttershy

Had an amazing time at the alley! It was great to see all the different trick shots from people. Especially enjoyed making a fool of my self trying to slide kick the ball and just punting it straight into the gutter.

-Michael Boveda

I absolutely loved how we all started Scootalooing the bowling balls

-Steve C.

I enjoyed this meetup. it was my first, and i wont lie i was shy but it was cool.

-Diego A.

Great Meetup (my 2nd Bronny Meetup) :3 It was fun Bowlin and great chatting with

Bronies in the bay area :D Awesome that we raided a The pony isle :3
-LyokoTravels