

ENORA HANAMURA

song playing ~ In My Room - Julia Wolf

A compassionate girl who hates being seen as vulnerable by her loved ones, she works hard to make herself seem tough.

Alias: Enora / Enora means “Honor”, “Dignity”, and “Light. /

Birthday: September 12 / Virgo

Age: 17 years old

Height: 5'9 / Weight: 48kg

MBTI: ENTP

Likes: Eating hot ramen, people complimenting her ears, baking,

Dislikes: Being alone.

Favorite Food: Tonkotsu Ramen

Enora is a quiet and compassionate girl who has disorganized attachment. This struggle can make her shut down or become defensive when she's feeling vulnerable. Beneath her bluntness and the walls she puts up, there is a deep loyalty to those she loves, and she expresses her care through actions rather than words. Enora finds herself overthinking the things people say, driven by a fear of being a burden to others. Her life is marked by a profound longing for connection, even if she clings on her fears.

Enora Hanamura, born in the Hanamura Clan, is known as the "Graceful Flower" of the Hanamura Clan. The clan is EXTREMELY strict when it comes to etiquette, charm, and obedience—often beating their children just for one small mistake.

When they found out Enora inherited the CT, "Elegant Bloom" (Everyone who has this technique is bound to have elf ears) they all had high expectations for her, she trained until dawn, practiced posture until her back broke from how low she was bowing, how to be "obedient" and "submissive", and how to get anything from someone just from charm alone.

She enjoyed the attention that came with being known as the "Graceful Flower." She was known as the girl with the poise of a flower. But her keen eye noticed something. Her siblings and cousins weren't like her. While she was pampered and showered with love and attention, her other relatives were subjected to discipline and punishment. She felt bad, so she rebelled—she stopped being obedient, always talked back. They were confused; she never acted like that. But of course, no one is exempt from discipline. Not even the most fragile flower.

They couldn't beat her to death, no, she had an inherited technique. That was rare—and she was one of a kind. She just needed more "elegance."

Enora, at the age of 14—using the skills of quiet gracefulness they had forced upon her —left and escaped the clan just at the crack of dawn.

When she joined Jujutsu High, her weapon was a scythe. The values she was taught were still evident in her personality and charm. She was still as graceful and elegant as a flower.

Resonant Hymn

[THIS IS OUTDATED - WILL BE UPDATED
SOON]

Her voice uses cursed energy into sound waves. The notes carry her cursed energy and "tune" the cursed energy of allies around you, making them stronger, faster, and more stable.

Even if they are near death, it gives them a boost of adrenaline that helps them get away safely.

DOMAIN EXPANSION

the opponent/s is summoned to a gorgeous and luxurious ballroom the ballroom is filled with dummy, mannequins ballerinas.
at random times, a spotlight shines on a random mannequin
when the spotlight shines, enora appears and replaces the mannequin and she will begin dancing (for 30 seconds)

when she dances, the opponent/s MUST not move while she dances, or they get spotted by her and they get attacked (unless simple domain) when she dances, her goal is to attack anyone that is near her. So if u somehow get unlucky and u were near the mannequin that she replaced...you get attacked

while she dances, she becomes blind, BUT her attacks become faster and her CE output you much higher than usual

IN SUMMARY : her domain expansion is from The Bridge Curse - Mad
Ballerina

weapon she uses: a scythe

small drabble

She transferred in after a mission in her hometown went bad. Her first impression of Yuta was "Great, a crybaby." He was quiet and timid, and he looked like he hadn't slept in a month. His first impression of her was that she was shy aswell but tough, fought headfirst, and never let anyone see her vulnerable side (tsundere). The moment they started to get close was after a mission that went sideways. The cursed spirit was way too strong, and she was about to take a hit. Yuta stepped in, and Rika manifested. After, she was kneeling to him, trying her best to fix him up like "D-dont do that again, idiot." How they started dating was like Gojo ALWAYS pairing them up for missions, and they got closer from that. One month later, while they were eating ice cream, sharing one scarf, Maki and Panda went up to them like, "So.. you guys dating now?"

WHAT HER BAG WOULD LOOK LIKE

HOW THEY WOULD MISCHARACTERIZE HER

CANON ENORA: A mentally unstable teen who hides her affection by being spiteful to her loved ones, because she's absolutely terrified to be seen as weak. She's only normal when Yuta is around, so she follows Yuta around a lot because she thinks she can't be stable or grounded w/o him. So when Yuta left for Africa, things went downhill, harming herself in many different ways.

FANON ENORA: UwU yandere obsessive stalker!! A yandere tsundere (◡ > ˘ < ◡) Obsessed with Yuta senpai!!

song playing: Bad Habit - Steve Lacy

A voicemail he sent her that she loves to replay. Last thing he said to her b4 the flight was "take care of yourself!" She saved it and replays it whenever she feels like she wants to die. "Not even romantic, he says that to everyone!"

She saw something at the shops and immediately thought of "Omg, Yuta would love this!" She bought it, wrapped it for his birthday, too! It's been gathering dust inside her closet for months now. It has a tag that says "For his birthday!"

When Yuta left for Africa, she started to harm herself, and during missions, she would always be extremely reckless so that she could die.

She heard he was going to come back, she didn't ask Yuta because she's a tsun tsun, but she spent a week cleaning, buying his favorite food, and practicing what to say. It was a rumor, she told everyone, "tch!. Like I cared. I was just bored." She had to throw all the food away. But kept the receipt in her wallet.

She learned how to draw so she could draw both him and her in a “picture.”

She stopped going to Shoko-san after every single mission, "Waste of energy!" Now the scars from 3 months ago are still there. When they called, Yuta saw one on video, "What's that on ur arm?" Enora immediately pans the camera to a different angle, "Training injury. It's fine. Don't worry, idiot.

On his birthday, she texted him a happy birthday, then deleted the message immediately. She still baked a cake, one slice only tho..she ate it alone while staring at the other empty seat across from her,

Morning for her and night for him, night for her and morning for him. Everything is backward, right??? So she he started living backward to match him. She sleeps in the morning and wakes up at night. Talk about a messed-up schedule.

She super scared he changed .. like hmm What if him being in Africa made him happy without her? What if he met someone else?? Who was way better/prettier/and stronger than her in every single way?? What if he comes back and doesn't recognize her???

song playing: Kabisado - IV of Spades

She used to hate making him worried; now she leaves little things unfixed so he'll notice on calls. Bruises, empty mugs, and self-harm scars. He calls it out every single time. "Are you still taking care of yourself?"

"Shut up, you're not here to say that, idiot."

Occasionally, she has to write down the sound / draw a smile of Yuta's laugh/smile in a journal because her brain is slowly forgetting how it sounded or what his smile looked like.

"His laugh was like a blooming flower." She scribbles in her journal.

She has a hidden stash of letters to Yuta that she can never send him, and she writes them on her worst days (which are every day), but they're hidden under the bed... She deleted all the pictures of him on her phone because she couldn't stand looking at his face before sobbing and cutting herself to ground herself.

She stopped saying his name, used to be all insufferable like "Yuta did this for me! I-i mean he does that to everyone! Not romantic or anything!!" or like "Yuta called me a (petname/compliment)!! I -I mean, he didn't have to !!" Now she just goes blank.

Started fighting more, like she picks fights with EVERYONE. Because if she's angry, then she doesn't have to be sad. Someone mentioned Yuta once, and she threw a punch. After she cried in the shower for an hour because "he'd be sad I did that."

On her birthday, she refused to celebrate. She laid in her bed crying, hugging his used hoodie.

On their anniversary, he sent her many texts. She left him on read; she didn't want Yuta to see her like this. She hid herself in her room, cried in a corner as she hugged a hoodie and listened to the voicemail.

Makes voicemails that she'll never send like "Yuta. I'm so tired." "I want to die!" but she deletes it and starts crying on the floor.

She always dials his number, then hangs up b4 it even rings. She does this again and again and again and again. She can't stand to be seen as vulnerable and weak.

She used to train hard to keep up with Yuta and stand side by side with him during missions. Now, she runs herself and charges in like a death sentence; she's littered with bruises, cuts, and dangerous wounds. Gojo-sensei once found her collapsed and half dead, but she immediately said, "Don't tell him. Please."

Whenever his name comes up, like someone just casually mentions "Okkotsu!", she immediately changes the subject, then runs to the bathroom and doesn't come out for 20 minutes. They stopped talking about him after that.

song playing: In My Room - Julia Wolf

She always forces herself to eat whenever people are watching, but the second she's alone, she stops. Uniform got loose, someone once commented on why she was losing so much weight, and she said, "None of your business," and just left.

Panda, Inumaki, and Maki once bought her snacks as well. She got mad and said, "I don't need you guys to feed me." After that, she goes back to her dorm and cries bc she knows she's pushing everyone away even though she needs help. "Yuta would be upset."

Whenever she gets injured, she never goes to Shoko for healing. She leaves it be. Cuts, bruises, wounds, she thinks she deserves this pain because Yuta left her.

Her fridge is stocked with 2 energy drinks, an expired rice ball, and a half-empty water bottle. She tells herself, "I'm not hungry," but we all know its because she doesn't have anyone to eat with. Maki finds instant ramen wrappers in her bag, like 14 of them.

Maki: When's the last time you ate real food?

Enora: I don't know, leave me be.

Minor mission, Cursed spirit charged at her, but she didn't even attempt to dodge the attack, just stood there. Maki tackled her out of the way, "What the hell was that?!" "I-im sorry." She whimpered.

He finally finds out, Maki tells him through messages. Spams her with messages but she only left him on read.

He gently encourages her to learn words in the local language, but she, with her tsundere attitude, pretends not to pay attention. A few weeks later, when she unexpectedly uses one of the words correctly, he can't help but smile. "Did you just...?" he asks, surprised. "IT WAS A COINCIDENCE, STUPID!!" she replies defensively, though deep down, there's a hint of pride in her response.

He tries to cook for Enora, she "supervises" by stealing food off the plate. "Idiot! You're doing it wrong!" "Can you show me how, love?" She burns it and causes a small fire, he burns the rice. They decided to just go out to eat. (Enora's learning how to cook behind her back, and Yuta's learning how to cook her favorite meals as a surprise!)

Enora is a great baker! You can definitely trust her with baking delicious pastries and the sweetest desserts! But that doesn't mean she's a good cook. Don't trust her with making lunch.

Enora is a picky eater and Yuta knows that, he encourages her to try new foods but she REFUSES to.

On their second date, they were having a study session—Enora was struggling with question 5 and Yuta noticed. "Do you need any hel—" "I got it! Idiot—" After Yuta finished studying the whole textbook, Enora was still stuck on question 5. "Are you su—" "I-i-im sure! I-i just need to go to the restroom!" She goes to the restroom for a suspiciously long time. While she was in the restroom, he answered the remaining questions + added notes on the previous questions and how he did the newly answered questions.

Whenever Enora gets hurt, instead of him treating it normally with hands...He kisses the wound/injured area and transfers the RCT from there.

While she was dying in his arms, no hope left since the sickness spread..Yuta kissed her softly—desperately trying to envelop RCT in her whole body. He kissed her until her body went cold.

Yuta is most likely deeply insecure of his forehead scars/stitches after the fight with Sukuna and Enora was probably the only one who comforted him about it. After they got married and had one daughter, Enora unfortunately died shortly of a sickness. Yuta was absolutely devastated and his insecurities came back tenfold because she wasn't there to comfort him anymore.

After her death, Yuta is probably forgetting her. The sound of her voice, the way she laughed, the way she reached for his hand whenever things got too hard. And maybe one day, even what it was like to be held by her. Although, while Yuta was cleaning out Enora's stuff, he finds old letters that Enora made back when he was still in Africa. He finds the gift that Enora bought for him on his birthday.
