

Ya'tea-Than was born on Yautja Prime to the mill clan. He stands at 8' foot, which was above average for a normal Yautja. Ya'tea-Than is very talkative, he loves to listen to stories of other Yautja's hunts and sometimes share a few of his own.

Ya'tea spends his time socializing with other hunters, mostly hunting in the underground hunting caverns improving his skills. As he trained under the mentorship of his elders for years.

Ya'tea was chosen by the clan leader to foray into a ancient temple to hunt the "ultimate prey." When their ship arrived at the planet, Ya'tea and two other unblooded stepped off. It was a planet, flourished with flora and wildlife. It was raining and mildly humid. The three Yautja approached the Pyramid, Ya'tea looked at the other two Yautja and said "We hunt!" The two Yautja clicked in agreement and they entered the temple. They walked down a long dark tunnel till it split into three paths, each Yautja took a path with Ya'tea taking the right path.

Time passed with minutes turning into hours, eventually Ya'tea emerged with the upper half of a Xenomorph strapped to the back of armor, his armor had burns and holes in it from the serpent blood. Bearing his new mark Ya'tea activated the relay beacon. As the ship passed over, Ya'tea roared in excitement for successfully finishing his first hunt.