Flexible CSA

What is a Flexible CSA?: A Flexible CSA (Community Supported Agriculture) is a farm subscription program in which a local consumer (you) purchases a share in the farm's products for the season. You then choose exactly what veggies you want using our super simple weekly online ordering form. Your share can then be picked up anytime Saturday at one of our multiple pick up locations. For investing, you will then receive a percentage bonus for the amount you have invested. Our program allows you to get exactly what produce you want and when you want it. You can purchase exactly as much as you need and no more. As a member you are investing in your food supply and in a stronger local food system. This is not just a way to purchase vegetables, but is a way to connect with your farmer, support the local economy, eat healthier, and meet other local food lovers. We will also be hosting events on farm to connect you closer with your food and other members.

Payment / Share Options: We do not want financial limitations to restrict your access to fresh, chemical-free produce, or a relationship with your local farmer, so we are offering multiple options this season based on your individual needs and financial capabilities. Remember, our main season runs from March through December, so that's potentially 40 weeks of fresh produce. The best part of being a member is that you only have to purchase produce when you want it and no food ever goes to waste.

Member Agreement:

I have read and understand the details of the Old City Acres 2019 CSA. I realize that each season is unpredictable, and despite planning, dedication, and hard work, there are many naturally occurring variables (weather, pests, etc.) that could possibly affect my share. I agree to take part in the risks and (more often) rewards involved in chemical-free, sustainable farming.

In return, Old City Acres will provide me with seasonal, high quality, fresh produce that is grown without synthetic fertilizers or chemicals. A regular newsletter will be e-mailed to me with exciting recipes, variety descriptions, and happenings at the farm. My farmer will be available throughout the season to answer questions, receive feedback, and address concerns.
