

Luna Learns to Fly ✨🧚‍♀️

Luna Learns to Fly is a heartfelt children's story about courage, imagination, and discovering your own way to grow.

Luna is a brave little girl who loves gymnastics. One day at the circus, she sees something magical: a pole dancer moving through the air like a fairy. Inspired, Luna starts practicing every day at the playground, dreaming of flying just like she saw.

Along the way, she meets Leo, who imagines he's a firefighter. Together, they learn an important lesson: flying isn't about leaving the ground... it's about trying again, building confidence, and believing in yourself.

Why this book matters

Pole dancing is often misunderstood, yet it's a sport that builds strength, confidence, and creativity. As a pole dancer myself, I wanted to create a story that introduces pole in a positive, age-appropriate, and inspiring way.

There are currently very few children's books that represent pole as what it truly is: a beautiful, athletic art form.

For studios and instructors

This book is a meaningful addition to any pole studio community:

- ✓ Helps normalize pole for younger audiences and families
- ✓ Gives students a way to share their passion with their children
- ✓ Supports a more open, stigma-free conversation around pole
- ✓ Creates an emotional connection between your studio and your students' families

Many pole dancers become parents and want to share what they love. This book helps make that possible.

Perfect for:

- Pole dancers with children
- Studios that value community and inclusivity
- Families curious about pole in a positive, approachable way
