Quirk

»Name: Nine-Tail Illusion

»Description: The quirk gives the user nine large and fluffy fox tails that when flicked or moved in a certain way will each create a different illusion. It only works when the quirk is purposely being activated.

1st Tail - Visual Illusions (Illusions that play with sight. Ex - there being an animal that isn't actually there)

2nd Tail - Auditory Illusions (Illusions that play with hearing. Ex - Voices that seemingly come from nowhere)

3rd Tail - Scent Illusions (Illusions that play with smell. Ex - a random foul odor)

4th Tail - Taste Illusions (Illusions that play with taste. Ex - the taste of a steak without there being anything in the target's mouth)

5th Tail - Touch Illusions (ex- feeling of spiders crawling up body, wet clothes, and even the feeling of having something in your eyes)

6th Tail - Psychological Illusions (ex- can cause stuff like paranoia and feelings of being trapped and such. Illusions that belong in a single target's head)

7th Tail - Disorienting Illusions (ex- like the room is spinning)

8th Tail - Reality Illusions (Change in beliefs of reality in a single target. Ex - Belief that everyone is out to get them, belief that they are all alone, belief that something that doesn't exist actually exists)

9th Tail - Illusion Illusions (Makes the target think that something that isn't an illusion is actually an illusion. Applies to all the other illusion types without there being an actual illusion)

»Strength: Creating extremely realistic and believable illusions and mental distortions. The Visual illusions themselves can touch people without disappearing.

»Drawbacks: The Visual illusions will disappear if touched. The quirk is unable to work if her tails are bound or unable to move. When the quirk is activated it causes a soft bell chime sound so she's at a disadvantage to people with excellent hearing. The user has to be in the same vicinity as the Illusions so if you find the user then the trick of the illusion will be gone. The illusions are temporary and take a lot of concentration to keep up. With strong enough will, the target can break free from illusions on their own if they realize it's an illusion.

Traits

Positive:

- She's happy go lucky and almost always has a smile on her face
- Very polite

“I don't think you understand what you have gotten yourself into“

Backstory: Hailing from Kyoto, Furi was raised to be the perfect Yamato Nadeshiko. The perfect, perfect Japanese woman. From a young age she was trained in every kind of Japanese art from calligraphy to Kabuki and Noh theater and Martial arts from Karate to Kyudo.

Neutral:

- Elegant demeanor
- Skilled in almost every single traditional Japanese art (Art and Martial Arts)

Negative:

- Commits heinous crimes because she's bored
- Has no care for human life

She was always trying to better herself and become absolutely perfect by pushing herself past her breaking point in everything she was training in, including her quirk. Eventually it came the time for Furi to go to highschool, and in a fight to push herself even further in becoming the perfect Yamato Nadeshiko, she decided to train to become a pro hero at Shiketsu. In the middle of the year in her first year, the pressure of everything finally got to her and she snapped. Without a word, Furi dropped out of highschool to pursue her own happiness. That happiness being derived from causing absolute mayhem just for the fun of it.

Personality

»General personality: Furi is a cheerful Yamato Nadeshiko that does not like being bored. She hates monotony. She loves Japanese arts despite her trauma of being forced to perfect everything. She finds death and murder entertaining but she won't kill people for no reason. She takes pride in being a trickster and being devious.

»Likes: Watching people die, being a Yamato Nadeshiko

»Dislikes: Being bored, monotony, peanuts

»Weaknesses: Being petted because she secretly loves physical affection like that.
