No Code automated business consultant client

Running a business can go either one of two ways.
I finally had the chance to run a business that I enjoyed.
Years of struggling and working for the man, finally paying off in the form of independence and freedom from the chance I got of living my dream life.
But then came that fateful day a couple months into running my business that rocked me.
It had come crashing down the boring tasks that keep the business afloat started to pile up because of my lack of organization which in return started making the business less efficient Months of hard work and success went down the drain.
In a moment like this I had two options.
I could either give up, go find a job, and say goodbye to the dreams I was chasing.
Or I could overcome my insecurities and bad habits and find a way to keep my dreams alive.
Being a success or being a failure,
The choice was mine.

Gratefully I was able to find a system that was set up that gave me the ability to get over my bad habits and become organized and efficient.

And I have my friend Joe Pino at Black Diamond Technologies to thank for that.
Discover the same systems enacted in my business that Black Diamond Technologies orchestrated for me

Meet Esthetician Lexie

Follow me on Instagram and see updates of my esthetician journey and the skills I will be posting... https://www.instagram.com/estielexieee/

This is my very first video, and I am very nervous about it!

In this video, I am introducing myself and telling you a little bit about my journey of how I decided to become a Esthetician. I will also be giving you a little incite on what the page will be about and the types of things I will be posting

xoxo

* ~ * ~ * ~ * ~ *

Don't forget to subscribe to my YouTube channel...
https://www.youtube.com/@UCnDgngM5ioyTdngF-pHHFYA

Follow me on Snapchat:
lex_saumenig

Subject Line: I hung up the phone and just stared.....
Earth shattering moments can go either one of two ways.
I had finally started making real money for the first time in my life.
Years of struggle and toil, finally paying off in the form of thousands of dollars being wired to my account each month for commission on huge deals I had helped a hot-shot marketing agency land.
But then came that fateful phone call a month into the bear bug scare that left me rocked.
It had all dried up.
GONE.

Because of supply chain disruptions, my client's clients were all going bankrupt,
And the thousands he owed me simply wasn't coming.
In a moment like this I had two options.
I could either give up, go find a job, and say goodbye to my dreams.
Or I could muster the strength to rise to the occasion and find a way to win.
Post traumatic stress or post traumatic growth,
The choice was mine.
Thankfully I had just stolen a set of mental models that not only gave me the key to bounce back from that dire moment and 10X what I had been making before.
(Plus reinvent every aspect of my life from the ground up)
And I have my friend Andrew Tate to thank for that.
Discover the exact mindset tools I stole from Andrew Tate to build my own success,