

The Prophet Alliance, is an amalgamation of several gangs from the inner New York urban area. After seeing newer gangs arrive and start instant beef with older gangs such as the Slausons and Clingers in order to get them out to take all the glory for themselves, the Slausons and Clingers came to an agreement to work together. They met at 800 block in the Bronx and United for the first time in history, ending decades of bloodshed between the two factions for the sake of fighting common enemies. Gone are the blue and red flags of yesterday, as they United under the colors White, Black and Gold to match a heavenly theme. Later on down the line however, members of some of the older mexican gangs found themselves the target of newer gangs as well, so they made a mexican clique of the Prophets, and planned on using their combined gang power to assist in fighting against the cliques that were taking over their city.

Colors and insignias:

Where the gang gets its infamy:

The gang believes in territory and drug control. You control the streets, you control the city. However when it comes to drugs in particular, They prefer not to sell to their own neighborhood, as they know the negative effects of drugs on the areas they're sold in. While the gang has a large presence on the south side, they still manage to make incredibly sneaky moves when it comes to the drug and home invasion game.