

Les « lecteurs radicaux » | The Radical Readers

Présente :

Presents:

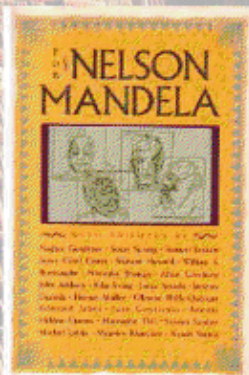

Peter Fitzpatrick

(University of London, Birkbeck School of Law)

En dialogue avec Jacques Derrida

In conversation with Jacques Derrida

"The Laws of Reflection: Nelson Mandela, in Admiration"

Parrainage / Sponsored by:

La Fondation du droit de l'Ontario
Des fondations plus solides pour la justice en Ontario

Pour information | For information: Pascale Fournier, Pascale.Fournier@uOttawa.ca - <http://www.rr-lr.blogspot.com/>

uOttawa

Faculté de droit
Faculty of Law

Le lundi 4 avril 2011, 11 h 30 à 13 h

Pavillon Fauteux (FTX 202)

Université d'Ottawa, Faculté de droit, 57, Louis-Pasteur Priv.

Monday, April 4, 2011, 11:30 a.m. - 1:00 p.m.

Fauteux Hall (FTX 202)

University of Ottawa, Faculty of Law, 57 Louis-Pasteur PVT

Argument:

“Remarking radically on the similarity between literature and law provides a focus that fuses Mandela’s conception of law and Derrida’s of justice – fuses them to the effect that justice is found to be intrinsic to law, and so much so that law takes on the resistant, even revolutionary, force associated with justice. Whilst this ‘law’ hardly corresponds to standard notions, nonetheless this is a reading of the law that will claim to be both accurate and operative. It is a radical reading of the law in that it would go to the root of law (and borrow the etymology of ‘radical’: radix, root). The work that impels this reading is the surprisingly neglected ‘The Laws of Reflection: Nelson Mandela, in Admiration’ by Derrida.”