1. Support for and by the artistic community in Ukraine:

Artists, curators and cultural institutions from all over the world help with your voice to stop the Russian war against Europe and Ukraine! ASU (Artists Support Ukraine) is running a number of different programmes and support schemes for Ukrainian artists, from mini-grants to female artists to ideas for solidarity actions. For full accountability, they monthly publish reports of their work. https://artistssupportukraine.today

From the first days of the war in Ukraine, Andriy Zoin and Alina Oliynyk, founders of Bakota Hub (Бακοτα Χαδ), started to take in the refugees from the hot spots of our country. Before the 24th of February, they were organizing the festival called "Respublica" and other cultural projects. Today, they continue to work on the premises of the old school in Goraivka village on their own to equip the place for the many refugees who have passed through or stay there still. The next stage is equipping a residence for artists from the occupied territories so that they can create new artistic works. https://www.facebook.com/watch/?v=1222735821814705

Help Ukrainian artists with basics and support their art work.

Jam Factory Art Center is a contemporary art and culture institution based in Lviv.
Colleagues, Partner Institutions, and Everyone who is ready to support our initiative!
One day after launching the program Artists in War, we received more than 60 applications from artists who are left without the opportunity to create and earn money because of the war.

We need your support to help our artists in crises with basic necessities and encourage them to renew their artistic work and become voices of the society that is living through the most devastating times.

Anyone can join the Artists in War program, both personally and institutionally. Any donation will be a huge help to the program.

Support writers in Odessa!

We are fundraising, Ilya Kaminsky and Rob Lipton, for Odessa writers who had either been dislocated by war, becoming refugees, or have stayed in their home-town and have to deal with rising food prices, and non-stop daily air-raid sirens, and fear of Russian invasion of Odessa. You can read more about their situation in this compilation translated and published in The Paris Review:

Call to all theatre and dance people everywhere: a fund in Ukrainian to give micro grants to independent Ukrainian performing artists

To organise ways of supporting the artists that stay on the territory of Ukraine in time of war, the teams of Ruban Production ITP made a decision to create "Ukrainian Emergency Performing Arts Fund" on the basis of non-profit CO "Impulse Transformation Platform". We opened two separate accounts in EUR and USD to collect funds. These donations will allow us to provide emergency microgrant help of 8000 UAH (aproximately 250€) to each Ukrainian artist from independent scene staying in Ukraine, upon their request. The landing page is created specifically to publish a quick simple application request-form for Ukrainian artists to obtain microgrants, as well actual information about donations received (grouped by country) and the amount of the artists that already got support.

On this page you may find also useful links (below) on how to support Ukrainian artists beyond the performing arts domain, indeed other ways of support. Feel free to contact us

Also don't hesitate to propose any form of cooperation or collaboration that:

- could help our actual performing arts scene to be supported in time of war;
- or to be presented abroad for it's better visibility and charitable fundraising events https://www.uepaf.org.ua/?fbclid=IwAR2wCzQEpHCJkaCYnhOqzan42h3D3NbY2L3uRskvVL7BEVzn98amca-2RM0

The Kyiv Biennial launched its own urgent initiative to support the Ukrainian artistic and cultural community.

The first task of the initiative is to provide financial assistance to those staying in Ukraine and needing support to meet basic needs in terms of occupation and relocation. You can apply for help at https://esi.kyivbiennial.org/

Музейний кризовий центр/Museum Crisis Center is a basic initiative of cultural science and the director of the Lviv Museum " Територія Терору " Olga Gončar, which is implemented in partnership with Інша Освіта / Insha Osvita and NGO "New Museum". All of this can be obtained by filling out the form (https://cutt.lv/vA3FLoB)

NGO "Museum of Contemporary Art" together with partners Заборона , The Naked Room and Мистецький Арсенал created the Ukrainian Art Fund of Emergency Aid. Ukraine Emergency Art Fund : A tool for practical help for Ukraine and artistic community here and now.

Every post counts, every "hope you are safe" means a lot! It is somewhat pacifying to know we're not alone in this war crime tragedy.

Lots of you have been wondering what can be practically done to support Ukraine and, in particular, our artistic community I am proud to belong to. There are many artists and fellow art people who who are desperately in need of any possible financial support to protect themselves and their families, being unable to earn any money with their art, neither right now nor in the nearest future because of war.

Together with colleagues from Громадська організація "Музей сучасного мистецтва" / МОСА NGO, Заборона and Mystetskyi Arsenal we, The Naked Room , joined forces to create an emergency foundation, raise funds and distribute them for immediate needs of individuals and longer-term inquiries from Ukrainian institutions damaged from war. ueaf.moca.org.ua

The web site gives a full information of how to donate and how we operate it further + all bank account details.

Within the first week after we launched we supported 13 artists with overall 47.000 hryvnia donated mostly by individuals and Ukrainian companies.

Please donate and spread the word. Even small donations like 20 euro make a difference. http://ueaf.moca.org.ua/?fbclid=lwAR0DNFlzt0Acdh6wvAlj2ifRBdlo-D4gyqq0alm1YLBq-eye8 LJGH6waMg

2. International associations with members in Ukraine, also raising funds and acting on the ground:

The Saint Javelin meme, which depicts the Virgin Mary holding a Javelin anti-tank missile, has become the symbol of Ukrainian resistance and an unlikely source of funding. Christian Borys, a Canadian journalist turned entrepreneur, turned the meme into a charity brand to help fundraise for the country's reconstruction. "The Russians were unbelievably good at their propaganda in 2014 and 15, and Ukraine couldn't figure out how to counter it now it's completely flipped around...the overwhelming public image of Ukraine, boosted by memes and local brands, has turned the tide of war", Borys said. Immortalised as a giant mural of an armed saint painted on a Kyiv building, it has been printed on stickers, emblazoned on clothes and posted all over social media networks. The former journalist, who has Ukrainian roots and spent between 2014 and 2018 covering the war in eastern Ukraine, initially just wanted to use the design to sell some $10 stickers and raise money for charity. Borys plans to turn the project into a social enterprise. All production is planned to take place in Ukraine within the following months in an effort to contribute to rebuilding the country. Their mission statement: We are in business to re-build Ukraine.

Ukrainian charity organisation, Help Us Help, has branched into various kinds of assistance and provides protective equipment for journalists covering the war. Founded in 1993, Help Us Help (formerly known as Dopomoha Ukraini – Aid Ukraine) is a federally registered Canadian charitable organization, focused on humanitarian aid and educational projects in Ukraine and in Canada. In the 29 years since being founded, the organization has delivered more than $25 million dollars in charitable aid to projects and organizations engaged in the areas of humanitarian aid, education, literacy, arts and culture, social work, civil society, and more. In response to the consequences of the 2014 Ukrainian Revolution of Dignity, Euromaidan, Help Us Help expanded its charitable initiatives to include humanitarian support to the victims of the conflict. The organization is committed to raising awareness through education in Canada and in supporting Ukraine's democratic development as the country looks to rebuild a brighter future. https://helpushelp.charity

Federation of European Publishers and the Ukrainian Book Institute

A Fund has been established and already printed 600 books for Ukrainian refugee children. The fund aims to print in Europe hundreds of thousands of children's books in Ukrainian to allow children to keep the link with their homeland. The city of Kharkiv, where the main printing works are located, has been heavily bombed, making it impossible to print books in Ukraine. All the money collected will be managed by the UIB, which will choose the titles and coordinate with local relays to print and distribute the books to the children. The FEP is the guarantor of this operation https://gogetfunding.com/crowdfunding-campaign-to-support-printing-of-ukrainian-childrens-books/?fbclid=lwAR2Sh62ucelfMWjRxgJtyqmCOBM_F7vyHfjEcBg3uWswlgbkD4phwmuQAVs

Opportunities for Ukrainian arts workers and Facebook forum for arts workers to seek assistance

Announcing a new network - the Alliance for Art Workers in Exile – *AAWE - run my brilliant colleagues, Róna Kopeczky and Sasha Pevak, with a bit of help from Honor Harger. We have been working together on maintaining the Contacts for Ukrainian artists and arts workers website (contactsforukrainians.art/), but the Alliance goes a step further. It will share opportunities for all exiled artists and arts workers and provide a forum for arts workers to ask for help.

The Alliance will build bridges, create what Róna beautifully describes as "hospitality in action", and nurture a network of emergency residencies that can be reactivated any time, in any situation of urgency.

If you'd like to be involved, please join us.

6. Individuals working with refugees who will use donations directly with them (only sources highly recommended by trusted friends here)

Elisabeth Cullen Dunn

"Be careful where you donate. We are on the border. No sign of UNHCR, Care Intl, Save the Children, World Vision.....all totally absent. (IOM was here last night). The work here in Poland is all being done by a loose network of activists, local NGOs and private citizens and they are doing an amazing job. Last night, food was being handed out by a convoy of Sikhs in turbans and a totally whack Scotsman in a kilt and bare knees at 20 degrees. Polish teenagers gave out sandwiches and coffee, German volunteers were driving people. The local fire department was loading buses to take people to a shelter. All being done unofficially, organized by Facebook and text message." "I have not been impressed with the big international organizations. But man, World Central Kitchen https://wck.org) has impressed me. They are at every crossing point with hot, nutritious food. (And believe me, after living on packaged snacks for days, people are eager for real food.) WCK, I salute you. You picked a well-defined job and you are doing it excellently."

We are routing money to volunteers on the ground here, and to refugees themselves. You can Venmo me at @Elizadunn1, last four 0813."

8. (Arts) Scholarships and other arts opportunities available for Ukrainian refugees:

Opportunities for performing arts people from Ukraine, in Portugal.

The Teatro Nacional São João has set up the project Ukraine – Free Stage, a program for Ukrainian artists and cultural professionals who, in the present context of the war in Ukraine and its consequent humanitarian crisis, are currently settling in Portugal.

The program has two fundamental components: 1) integrating actors and other technical and artistic professionals from the theatre industry in the TNSJ's activities, namely its production projects; and 2) awarding grants to artists and professionals from the theatre and other fields so they may develop original projects within this National Theatre's programming framework or carry out workshops at our Educational Centre. The goals of Ukraine – Free Stage are to welcome artists and other cultural professionals into a stable theatrical structure and to open a programming space which will hopefully help war refugees to resume their artistic activity in a new setting.

The applicants are required to submit a presentation letter/statement of intent and a short biography or abridged CV, in English, to the following e-mail address: freestage@tnsj.pt.

The Teatro Nacional São João has started the project with a base budget of 50 000 euros, which is being reinforced with the sponsoring support of national companies, themselves actors as well on this Free Stage.

Scholarships, Accommodation, jobs for Ukrainians in Cardiff, Wales.

Cardiff Met pledged £400,000 over the next two years to fund Fellowships and Scholarships for academics and students displaced by the war in Ukraine. We're also supporting our British Council research partner, the Lviv National Academy of Arts, in Ukraine and are working with the Welsh Government to act as a super sponsor by providing accommodation, English language support for refugees and support for schools to assist with the integration of Ukrainian children.

Cardiff Met became Wales' first designated University of Sanctuary in 2018 and for the last four years we have been providing scholarships for those displaced by conflict around the globe.

Any funds you are able to donate will add to our existing pledge and help the people of Ukraine rebuild their lives and their country.

As well as the £400,000 package of Fellowships and Scholarships, Cardiff Met has also pledged accommodation for those fleeing Ukraine. In addition, the university is working with the Purpose Coalition to support a new initiative called 'Jobs for Ukraine' supporting those displaced by the war. Cardiff Met will shortly be advertising 50 new academic posts and these will be brought to the attention of universities in Ukraine where academics may no longer be able to continue working.
