There ARE people who cannot wear masks, & I'm one of them. Every time I wear one, no matter the material, my face breaks out into a staph infection 2 days later! It's called impetigo & it's ugly and painful. I cannot work as a result. No, I'm not going to go out without a mask.

I usually work alone, so I don't see my coworker a lot. Turns out he has been fighting a staph infection on his chin.

His doctor says it was from wearing a cloth mask. Changed his perspective on masks, before he was very serious about the mask, now not so much #COVID

Neighbor, who's a die hard liberal Democrat, is waking up!
Just told me about her BFF who was diagnosed today with facial staph infection from being forced to wear a mask all day at work. She's in pain & her face looks horrible.
Neighbor's pissed! Says she's done with Dems lies!

Today I heard about a healthy teenage girl who got staph infection on her face from wearing a mask.

Serious risk for scarring, not to mention the potential for spread throughout her body.

Just one of many examples of harm our society is doing to innocent kids- and it's illegal.

I'm a RN and this is absolute FACT. We have treated more staph infections on the face than I have ever seen before in the past 2 months. New development this week was thrush in mouth and nose.

A mask, gives lots of people a staph infection (I had one and had to get a prescription from my doctor, its from inhaling your own carbon dioxide, and also, messes lungs with a fungal infection. We need to breath whenever we can.
Long lines in supermarkets cause
this to occur.

Y'all this actually happened to me, I had it in my nose and on my mouth and had to go get antibiotics to get it to go away. The cause wearing a mask and having some sort of small cut on my face (due to dry skin) it was honestly terrible. And I know not all of these picture are from masks bc children contract it very easily (impatigo, what I had which is basically a staph infection) but it was confirmed from the doctor that more than likely the mask is what caused it so be careful, an... I just noticed that a friend of mine was posting that they had developed a staph infection they think might be cover related to wearing the mask. First time I've heard of it but it probably could happen. Anybody else? I still think the benefits outweigh the potential Hazard. I have been washing my cloth masks but I also carry a hand spray of isopropyl alcohol whenever I go out and I wear it. When I return or take the mask off I spray both sides pretty good with the isopropyl alcohol.

So Ash woke up the other day and one side of her face and her eye was swollen with what appeared to be a pimple but because of the pain and pressure and because it was effecting her eye she went to urgent care. Good thing she did. They had to lance it and drain it. They gave her a shot of antibiotics and a prescription of antibiotics as well. Apparently it was a staph infection from wearing a mask so much 😭😭😭 Yall be careful and don't ignore stuff like this. The doctor was literally pushing the infection out from all the way up in her eyelid.

I don't know who needs to hear this, but Wesley had some kind of staph or strep infection at the opening for both nostrils that we have been battling for the last 1.5 weeks. This pic is maybe only 1/3 of how bad it actually got. No other symptoms whatsoever. No runny nose, no fatigue, no fever, nothing. He is not a nose picker typically. The only thing I can think of leading up to this was wearing a mask at the farmers market for an hour on a humid day. He is a camel, drinks a lot of water, is a sweaty, moist kid in general, a little space heater. His nose got so bad that his nose was bleeding, it was like open sores right there, so raw, crusty, not nice looking boogers inside either. Colloidal silver didn't knock it out which surprised me. OK at risk of being a social pariah: I got results back from my doctor's office, I do not have covid 😊. However, I did get informed that I have a lung infection. It was caught in time. But how did I get a lung infection?

Turns out when you use a mask more than an hour you create an infectious environment. With all the moisture and warmth, when that crap gets in your lungs you end up with a staph/lung infection. Please for the love of freaking God change the disposable masks and wash your cloth mask on a daily basis. Because this sucks

I'm an ICU RN. We have zero Covid19 patients in our unit. What we do have: a big increase in patients with antibiotic resistant PULMONARY STAPH infections. Ppl wear filthy masks all day & the bacteria living in our noses & mouths gets stuck in a warm moist "stew" in masks

You do ntknow those valves on n
95 masks are to expel air right.
You understand that wearing a cloth mask does nothing except break the moisture particles down further right. And also cases if staff infection are through the roof. You sheeple need serious psychological help.

One of my most libtarded friends in NYC now has a staff infection all over his face. His doctor said it was from wearing a mask. Telling perfectly healthy people they are being "selfish" by not doing something that does more harm than good is called "gaslighting."
