RING PERSONALITY:

Fallon is sweet and kind to an absolute fault. Even when someone screws her over, she will treat them with the same kindness the following week. She could be described as naive, but is very aware of the evils in the world, but due to suffering enough of her own, wants to put out positivity and optimism, no matter who she is dealing with.

She wants to be able to trust everyone, which leaves her open to being taken advantage of, something that has happened quite often in her career so far. She's all about her fans, performs for them and takes losses incredibly hard because of them.

She has a genuine heart and her drive to compete is just because she wants to wrestle, she always has. She doesn't have a malicious bone in her body whatsoever.

MATCH TACTICS

Fallon will always go for aerial first, the more she can avoid keeping her feet on the canvas the better. She's a VERY clean wrestler, will absolutely never cheat or take advantage of anything at all, not so much as extending a count.

She has a very high level of nervous energy that can sometimes get the better of her, in more high profile matches this will make her attack style more erratic

1. Speed: Being significantly smaller than most opponents, she is naturally quicker than most as well.
2. Agility: Fallon is exceptionally agile/athletic and can throw her body around with ease.
3. Passion: Her love of the sport is a huge motivator for Fallon & helps her to get back up when maybe others wouldn't.

WEAKNESSES:

CHARACTER HISTORY

Fallon doesn't know what her real name is, actual birthday or any details of her early life aside from what is officially on file for her. Her earliest true memories are around ten when she would watch wrestling shows at the various homes etc she went through.

When Fallon was 15 she was classed as a runaway and eventually met Blyss who helped train her and helped her get her life together, lying about her age she started competing around 16 on very small scales, school gyms etc. But never contracted anywhere until she was 18 when she signed her first professional contract with Sixth, when they folded she signed with Southside and then UG soon after.

She generally doesn't talk about her past or her personal life to any large degree, she's made several close bonds with people in the industry and has even gone to war with and alongside people who are fighting for the same things that she believes in. There has never been any attempt on Fallon's side to discover who her birth parents are.

After a very public relationship that ended in divorce with Josh Kennedy, she has mostly stayed away from the spotlight. Before the official dissolution of their marriage, Fallon disappeared for several years. This time was spent travelling around Europe wrestling in small indi promotions, often sleeping in her car or budget hostels with nothing to her name but the clothes on her back.

Though it's never been said why she left, she has spoken publicly about her return; friend and fellow student of Melyssa Locke, Kiana Masters asked Fallon to join her as one of the trainers for a new faction in Crucible Academy. Since her return Fallon has wrestled for MWE, DeathGraps, Deathwish Academy & Nexus Streaming projects. She is now romantically linked to Riley Savell, who also joined Renegades as a trainer.
