Subject- I thought I was incompetent and then everything changed.

You are always more intelligent than you think you are, all you need is the right mental conditions.

I was an average student but I always had hope that I have the potential to become the best version of myself.

But that hope got crushed in middle school when I tried so hard but my scores stayed average. I thought this was my plateau and there was no room for improvement. I felt like I had to give up on my dream to become a software engineer.

I discussed with my parents about changing to another field so that I can do better in my high school. They advised me to ask my cousin who's a senior software developer at Microsoft, who is one of the most intelligent and successful people in the family.

My parents called him for dinner and to discuss my options. He is also one of the closest people in the family so I told him that I feel helpless and hoped I was like him. My eyes filled with tears and told him that I feel like I am failing my parents.

He smiled and told me a simple scientific technique that he asked me to try for a month. If it doesn't work out, we can discuss my options.

My mental performance in that month was boosted by 10x. My memory was sharper, my focus was amazing and I was motivated to achieve even more. I passed high school on merit and made my parents proud.

Subject- Leave your competitors in the dust with this incredible discovery.

A man can always push himself past his limits with the right mental conditions.

I was an obese dude at an accounting firm, who was working in the same job position for 5 years. Seeing my colleagues leaving for better-salaried jobs or getting promotions and working on their own businesses, I felt like I'm the only one left behind. I was the last guy at work to ever get promoted.

I felt like I'm going to end up like all the loser obese guys in life and it scared the shit outta me. But I was not motivated enough to make a move. I was a procrastinator and pessimistic.

Until one day I came across one brilliant mind technic that changed the whole game

This specific technique not only kept me motivated but also improved my productivity at work by 10X. After a year I was promoted to senior accountant. I made such an incredible transformation physically and mentally that left people at my work in awe.
