

Some resources for your German-learning journey

Books

- Momo and Die unendliche Geschichte by Michael Ende: Fantasy classics that are beautifully written and accessible for learners.
- Identitätskrise by Alice Hasters: A sharp, modern exploration of race, identity, and belonging in Germany.
- Der gute Mensch von Sezuan by Bertolt Brecht: A classic play that combines philosophy, morality, and social critique. Typically in the Leselisten at school for teenagers in Austria.
- Herzfleischartung by Ludwig Laher: A darker, more challenging read that reflects Austria's history.
- Anything from the loved Austrian author Thomas Brezina.

Movies and Series

- Dark (Netflix): Germany's most famous series worldwide. Complex plot, lots of everyday and dramatic language.
- How to Sell Drugs Online (Fast) (Netflix): Modern, funny, and full of slang young people actually use.
- Tatortreiniger: A quirky German comedy with lots of everyday vocabulary.
- Türkisch für Anfänger and teenage classics like Die Wilden Hühner: Lighthearted, fun, and very approachable.

Podcasts

- Erklär mir die Welt (Andreas Sator): Explains big topics in a clear, simple way.
- Das Café am Rande der Freundlichkeit: Warm, conversational, and easy to follow.
- Geschichte aus der Geschichte: Fascinating historical stories told in an engaging style.

YouTube Channels

- Easy German (YouTube): Authentic street interviews with subtitles in both German and English. Perfect for hearing how people actually speak.

Music
