

Flat Iron With Built in Comb Teeth

There is nothing that compares to a flat iron when it comes to straightening hair tools, that is why there are tons of flat iron options out there. But that is not to say that you should go for the most popular model right away. If you find it hard to get your hair manageable when styling, you should consider getting a flat iron with teeth.

Flat irons with teeth may look weird, but the teeth, AKA built-in comb, do provide more powerful styling ability when getting your hair straightener. You probably have never used this type of straightener. Don't worry, we will explain how these teeth work and let you know if you need a flat iron with teeth. Let's dive in!

One of the benefits of a flat iron with a built-in comb is that the teeth of the comb can untwist your hair knots during the straightening process. Although you will still need to smoothen your strands at the beginning, the teeth can help you deal with those tiny knots left on your hair. When you are gliding the iron down, you are also using a comb to manage your strands in the meanwhile.

Build-in Comb's Teeth Help Iron Plates Straighten Hair Evenly

Just like a regular comb, the teeth on flat iron plates can part your hair evenly, making every strand can be straightened perfectly by the flat irons' heat.

If you have very thick hair, using a regular flat iron without teeth may not achieve really satisfying results. It is because the hair on the surface are likely to be burned while the middle hair layers are not straightened enough. Fortunately, a straighten with a built-in comb can solve this problem to some degree by dividing your strands into even parts and securing their positions while styling.

Who Should Use Flat Iron with Teeth?

According to the two main advantages of flat irons with built-in teeth, I would recommend people with thick and curly hair such as 4B or 4C type to give them a try. For people who don't have thick curly hair, you can go for a regular flat iron with nice plates directly.

Why Do Some Flat Irons Have Teeth?

Although you probably have seen some flat iron models that come with teeth, you may not know why those teeth are useful. Actually, they can help you to use the flat iron better in two main ways.

Flat Iron's Teeth Can Detangle Your Hair Knots

To ensure the styling result to be silky and smooth, the very first step is to detangle your hair before you use the flat iron. However, it is not an easy thing to do if your hair is kinky or very curly.

You know, it is almost impossible to unwind every tangled strand for people who have extremely curly tresses. That is why flat iron teeth are an easy and convenient way to make sure the flat ironing result is good as the teeth can save a lot of pre-styling work, making the straightening process more pleasant.

For those who have extremely curly hair that are a trouble to brush, getting a flat iron with comb can be the perfect move. Flat irons that have a comb attached to them cannot only straighten your hair but also brushes them while doing so, giving you a perfectly sleek and smooth look.

If brushing your hair every morning puts you off, a flat iron with comb can really turn around the way you think about your hair. To help you get only the best for your hair, here is a review of two of the best flat irons with comb available in the market.

Infiniti by Conair Pro Styler

If you are looking for high quality, performance and affordability, Conair Infinity can be the perfect flat iron with comb for you. It comes with a motorized rotating barrel that not only straightens your hair but also add a waves and volume to your hair, without causing any tangles. The 2" Tourmaline coated ceramic plates prevent damage and eliminate static while making the entire process much faster.

The iron offers multiple temperature settings with a 400° F limit and a 30-second quick heat-up feature. Two removable bristle attachments are also provided with the flat iron. Conair Infinity flat iron with comb also features an auto-off function and an LED indicator that makes it more convenient to use. This is one of the best and most affordable flat irons that you can currently get your hands on. flat iron with built in comb NHP natural hair products.

Conair Tourmaline Ceramic Straightener with Comb

Another perfect flat iron with comb that you can find in the market is the Conair Tourmaline Ceramic Straightener with Comb. This wet/dry iron features 2" straightening plates that can straighten, detangle and dry your hair all at once. Conair's Tourmaline Ceramic Technology is used in this iron to ensure a damage-free process while keeping the natural luster of the hair intact.

The wet-use feature allows you to maintain the natural silkiness and moisture of hair. The straightening comb detangles even the frizziest of hair quite well, giving you a perfectly smooth and sleek look by the end that impresses you and everyone who sees you.

The Conair Tourmaline Ceramic Straightener with Comb offers you dual voltage compatibility, making it usable in different parts of the world so you can easily take it with you while travelling. An on/off touch pad power button and an LCD indicator makes it very convenient to operate this flat iron with comb with the least bit of effort. An auto shut off feature and a professional length swivel cord adds to the functionality of this iron. Available on Amazon a fair price for the value it provides, you can trust this iron to provide the best results when it comes to extremely curly hair.

But, not all straightening hair brushes live up to the hype. So, what are the best straightening hair brushes? flat iron with built in comb NHP

For the very best hair straightening brush, you'll want one that heats up in under two minutes, features a wide enough heat range that you can customize it to your needs, and is made of ceramic or tourmaline materials to prevent hair damage. Since a lot of straightening brushes fit that bill, I've done a little digging. The innovative hair brush straighteners, below, do everything that your favorite brush and straightener would do — leaving you with smooth, frizz-free hair that's shiny and detangled.

If your hair is particularly prone to damage, look for straightening hair brushes made with ceramic or tourmaline materials. Ceramic heats more evenly to prevent hot spots that could damage your hair. Tourmaline, when heated, releases negative ions as it styles your hair, ions that infuse your hair with more moisture and protect your hair from drying out.

From a straightening brush that uses cool steam to flatten your mane to a best-selling straightening brush tool that heats up ASAP (for when you hit snooze a few too many times), you'll want to snag one of these two-in-one hair tools immediately. Trust me, with these must-have hair straightening brushes, you won't miss the old flat iron days.

With a double ionic generator, this wildly-popular hair straightening brush is actually healthier for your hair than other models on the market (ionic heat infuses your hair with moisture as it straightens). A ceramic heat surface will ensure that this brush heats your hair evenly, eliminating the chance of any harmful damage or breakage. And, this brush offers a particularly wide heat range, from 300 to 450 degrees Fahrenheit, that allows you to customize the tool to your own hair (curlier strands might need a bit more heat). It also heats up in just 60 seconds. This best-selling hair tool even comes with a travel bag so you can take it with you anywhere, and a heat-safe glove you can use to protect your hands when you're straightening your hair. Nearly 5,000 Amazon reviewers won't stop raving about this hair straightening brush.

According to one reviewer: "I was skeptical, but this straightening brush is amazing! I have tight curls/coils and this brush straightened better than my very expensive flat iron. I brushed my hair with a wire brush in sections and then passed the straightener brush through once and it was shiny and straight.

Some of the benefits titanium offers are even heat distribution for coarse hair, high heat conductivity, and production of enough negative ions. Titanium hair straighteners are also safer, mostly for natural and thick hair types, and the even heat distribution helps you to end up with quicker and much better results.

If you are conscious about the health of your hair, you would greatly benefit from the best titanium flat iron. This titanium flat iron review is aimed at helping you find the best titanium hair straightener.

OUR TOP PICK

Our top recommendation is the KPOZI Professional Titanium Flat Iron Hair Straightener. This titanium hair straightener is ideal for all hair types, and it is safe and very easy to use. It also comes with a wide plate that makes it ideal for very thick and long hair.
