Introduction must contain background, state of the art as a statement of the updated of an article, and research problems or hypothesis. At the end of the introduction, the purpose of the research must be stated. In scientific article format, it may not contain observation as well as research report, but it is written in state of the art to show the scientific update of the article.

The introduction should provide sufficient background on the chosen theme to help readers understand the problems and the significance of the research. It is essential to explain how this research relates to recent studies in the field. The explanation must be adequate, so the general scientific community, even those unfamiliar with the specific field, understand the topic and results.

LITERATURE REVIEW [Times New Roman, 12 pt, Justified]

[Your text is here], in 12 pt font-size (Times New Roman), 1.5 line-spacing. The literature review represents previous research in the research topic discussed and the theoretical core of an article. The purpose of a literature review is to "look again" (re + view) at what other researchers have done regarding a specific topic. Literature review serves to identify knowledge gaps found by the author when conducting a literature review and builds theoretical explanations that answer research questions and objectives. In this case, the articles listed must be articles that were published not earlier than 10 years.

THEORETICAL FRAMEWORK [Times New Roman, 12 pt, Justified]

[Your text is here], in 12 pt font-size (Times New Roman), 1.5 line-spacing. Theoretical framework is a systematic way to arrange science. Science has some parts, theory, fact, phenomena, and concept.

RESEARCH METHOD [Times New Roman, 12 pt, Justified]

[Your text is here], in 12 pt font-size (Times New Roman), 1.5 line-spacing. The methods used in research completion are written in this part. The research method used in problem solving is categorized as analysis method. Research methods consist of data topology, data collection method, data analysis, and data visualization.

RESULTS AND DISCUSSION [Times New Roman, 12 pt, Justified]

[Your text is here], in 12 pt font-size (Times New Roman), 1.5 line-spacing. Result and explanation contain findings of the research and scientific explanation. Scientific findings which acquired from result of a research also require reliable data. The scientific findings are not the data from the research. The scientific findings should be explain scientificly from; is the finding scientific? Who could it occur? Why does the variable trend happen? All those questions should be explaned scientificly, not only descriptively, but also supported by capable scientific phenomenon. Moreover, it should explain it's difference to other researchers' result which topics are related. The result and finding should answer the hypothesis in introduction.

Using figures, tables, diagrams, schemes

Each figure must be captioned below the figure and numbered sequentially. Figure sources are placed below the figure caption. Table information is written above the table. Figures and tables must be printed clearly (font size, resolution, and line thickness must be clear). Table sources are listed below the table. Information is written in lowercase letters, except for the first letter of each sentence
