

Sfamily first began as a small official server for the project JoJo subreddit, back in April of 2019. It was created by a man going by Undopromosyo, short for "Undo" or "Promi (no one called him that)". Undo was the founder of the project JoJo subreddit, but as we'll soon see, he had grown a tendency to be rash and impulsive, which lead to him deleting his reddit account alongside many more things.

For about 4-5 months the server stayed as an official hub for the subreddit, until the new members stopped pouring in and some older ones became more established. During said time a long lasting meme dubbed "Charteti" came after a joke art piece was created shipping a member named Vrteti and Chartebar (a PJJ moderator), thus creating Charteti. Around that time Undo had decided that the PJJ subreddit discord idea was finally dead and renamed the server to "Sfamily". The meaning behind that name stems from the stand Undo had used for the majority of his time playing PJJ, Stone Free. Not exactly a good name when you realise the acronym would translate to "Stone Freefamily", but as they soon came to realise, questioning Undo was a foolhardy decision at times.

-The Adammk Invasion-

In October, Sfamily got what might be considered its first ever big event. An original member by the name of Adammk had attempted to invade Sfamily and take control of it with his army of clones (one other person). Undo's attempts at kicking and muting the Adammk army were meaningless. In the chaos, Undo had locked the general chat and created a panic room dubbed "The Super Duper Ultra Anti-Gay Chamber", it's where they took shelter until the raid had subsided. Some say Adammk is still trying till this day to take over Sfamily, and other say; that he's already done it long ago.

-The Ok Boomer saga-

Soon following that, was Sfamily's greatest and most memorable event in its history. The Ok Boomer saga was the moment true colors shone. This was where the members of Sfamily finally realised what kind of owner Undo could truly be.

It all started with a single comment. Adammk had got into the good graces of his members once again and had shared an animated video concerning 7th part of JoJo's. After sharing it with the server, Adammk commented on how well done the video was, something the owner was quick to disagree on. After the downplaying of the quality of said video by Undo, Adammk responded to his critique with a line that would change the course of history in Sfamily forever.

Two simple words; ok boomer.

This line greatly upset the owner, to such an extent that he created a new rule against it. For from this point onward, anyone who used the phrase was banned for a certain amount of time from the server, ranging from a week to 3 months at most. The members were understandably outraged at losing their ability to free speech, but some were not convinced. And one of those members decided to stoke the fires. Franz Ferdinand aka Windfave had decided to test this new law, by uttering those same words. And with the hand of Zeus, Undo had smitten him, gone he was from the server.

The outrage was boiling, at that point no one was certain that the server would even stand on its own two legs. That everything that everyone worked for on the server was about to be lost to deletion. Undo had felt that his authority was questioned and so had to hold his ground. In the panic, Adammk created a spare server dubbed the "Refugee server". Some more member were banned and when things looked like their worst, Undo simply logged off, leaving them to their ashes.

After days past, Undo had unbanned all the members and had taken off the new rule, apologising. Everything seemed like it had gone back to normal and Undo celebrated the end of the war by joining the refugee server and uttering the words that started it all. The war had passed and everyone moved on, but the refugee server had stayed, for who knows when they would need its use again.

After the new peacetime, Sfamily had settled into a golden age of activity. Before any other major event, two note-able landmarks were forged. Bob x Undo and Sfamily: Out Of Context, both created by Adammk. These two inspired other works like Charteti: the fanfic, created by Adammk again, Windfave x Undo, created by Cbfan and Sfamily be like, created by Milos.

-The Islodinx arc-

The next note-able event was the Islodinx drama. One day Undo had decided to post about a low-quality meme channel that he had been recommended. This channel went by the name of Islodinx. Islodinx would post quantity over quality memes with no effort whatsoever. This intrigued the Sfamily members into digging more into the man himself, joining his discord server and leaving comments under his videos. What should have been a side-note in the longer Sfamily story, grew into a big drama after a certain video came out that Islodinx posted. The video itself was inoffensive, it was simply another low-effort meme, this time concerning the dead youtuber Etika reacting to an anime that the creator liked. This upset some Sfamily members after the realisation that in the videos description was posted the paypal of the creator, giving the impression that the creator was trying to profit off the death of Etika, which was considerably recent at the time.

This sparked a drama between the members of Sfamily and Islodinx. Islodinx ended up privating the video after some comments and uproar in his discord server. Islodinx himself left some comments on the youtube videos of some of the members and made some community posts on his youtube channel. By the end of the drama a feud had festered between some of the Sfamily members as Adammk was infuriated at Cbfan for attempting to profit off of the whole drama to boost the subscriber count of another member. A plan to invade a community discord server filled with small meme youtubers such as Islodinx using the youtube channel of Windfave who had met the joining requirements after a video he made had blown up and let him reach the joining requirements, but that plan never came to light. Islodinx stayed a relevant topic for some time but after the disappearance of his channel, all talk about the man ceased (apart from some notable memes).

-Bob'sfamily-

After the end of Ok Boomer, Sfamily thought it had seen its biggest and most worrying event. Although in retrospect it may seem like one of the most impactful, there was one event that, at the time, seemed even more server-ending than any of the previous ones. It has been dubbed "Bob'sfamily", referring to the man who set it about, Bob aka DINDI aka Luka.

Bob was the second most active member on Sfamily, and with that being the case he could've been considered the right-hand man of Undo at the time. And so, after some time of zero drama, Undo uttered a few haunting words in announcements: "Im tired", is all he said. After that, he left the server, never to be seen again...

...For a whole 3 days.

But nonetheless at the time no one actually knew if he was ever intending on coming back, this is another one of many displays of Undo's rash judgements, and in his haste, he had left all of the power to the server in control of his right-hand man, Bob. Bob was a well respected member of the server, but the power was simply too much for him to handle. One thing people need to know about Sfamily is that the server has been split into invisible factions for quite a long time. The majority of people there were of Serbian background as a consequence of Vrteti, who invited atleast 4 other people into the server, one of which being Bob. The second majority was taken by the Lithuanians, a group where members like Adammk and Pux resided in.

Undo fell into neither of these groups, he was the only one of his kind, a perfect middleground of leadership. So the moment Undo had left, the power dynamic had shifted. Bob immediately took on an offensive, changing the server name and picture in accordance to his new movement. At first he called it "SerbiaFamily" where the serbians of Sfamily had gained top leadership. They were given administrator priviledges and ranked at the top of the server list. This was a direct act of oppression that Bob dares to deny ti'll this day. War was peace in Sfamily during those 3 days and within the apex of the conflict, Bob showed his megalomaniacal personality by changing the server into what is now wildly known to be "Bob'sfamily".

After days of deadly arguing, Bob had finally come to his senses. He changed the server back to normal and vowed to never be owner again. Around the same time Undo had come back and took over the reigns. The damage was undone, but Bob had lost face as a competent leader and is known to gaslight the current owners by projecting his own insecurities and calling them quote "literally hitler".

-Adam x CGE/ The Milos Wars-

After the downfall of Bob'sfamily, another semi-golden age of Sfamily bloomed. During this time a certain member of Sfamily started becoming increasingly uncontrollable. The man who would rather die standing than live kneeling, Milos. But before war could fully grow between him and the other members, the owner Undo had been visited by the soul of Lucifer who he mistook for God. This gave him the inspiration to create the now iconic "Adam x CGE".

Project JoJo was not the only game the server was invested in. At times when updates were slow, the members were focused on other JoJo themed roblox projects such as the infamous "A Bizarre Day", short for ABD. The members would spend countless hours playing that game, and in it, there was a reskined version of the iconic Giorno stand from part 5 of JoJo's Bizarre Adventure, dubbed "Cracked Golden Experience" or "CGE". This stand in particular was quite problematic for some member seeking in battling another member named Adammk. It was the stand of his choice, chosen for its power and its sustainability.

(In the second Sfamily: Out Of Context video you could even see Vrteti exclaiming quote "adaMS FISH; I AHTE IT. HE USE FISH; I DIE", this refers to the powerful piranha attack in the game that Adammk would not shy away from using.)

In the outrage, Undo called back to his dream of starving babies and finally decided to enact his fury. He created a piece known as "Adam x CGE", a brain-challenging piece of "art" that exposed the watcher to untold horror. After witnessing it, Adammk finally understood Pain from Naruto, and decided to share his misery with the world. It just turned out that ABD had absolutely no Rule 34 content uploaded (an unforgivable loss against Project JoJo) and so Adammk decided to act. The community of ABD was notified and Sfamily had made history in the world of roblox JoJo games.

"Sadly", the posts ended up removed by the admins of Rule 34 who deemed it "Low-quality".

*Now come the Milos Wars.

Milos was a dedicated member of Sfamily, soaring the activity high with his borderline schizo posts. But slowly the community realised that Milos was setting new highs each time. Sure, an N-word there, a gay slur here, but something was making him grow to new extremes of edge never before seen. This was something that a member named Cbfan took special problem with. The community itself never advertised its family cleanliness, with the only exception being the quote "NSFW guide" created by Undo to protect general chat from non-mother friendly posts. But even so, some lines were beginning to get crossed and an anti-Milos campaign was started by Cbfan and Adammk. In these fights an iconic image that Adammk took while taking a shit portrayed the sheer ferocity of Milos' insults.

In one breath Milos managed to wage war on minorities, insult Cbfan's mother, call him various iterations of the F slur and also defended his sisters sexuality by claiming he saw her looking at Eren ecchi. The Milos wars ended with the banning of Milos.

-Sfamily 2.0-

Now we've finally come to what many consider to be the beginning of the downfall of Sfamily as everyone knew it. Undo had looked at the state of current Sfamily and decided that he needed to do something drastic once more to shake up the activity. Without hesitation Undo had went on to create his own new server, dubbed "RBfamily". Which stands for "Rebirthfamily", another one of Undo's great acronyms.

This server was a complete reset to the old one, a new beginning to Sfamily, but not without its controversy. Member Cbfan reared his face once again to complain about the staleness of the new server, that it did not contain the heart of the old server. Some voices tried screaming, but all in all, the second server was final and Sfamily 2.0 became the new Sfamily. Sadly, no one knew that it would spawn the catalyst for the complete downfall of the server.

-The Great Fallout/ End Of Sfamily-

It all began with a disappearance. Adammk decided that enough was enough, he had grown discontent with how Sfamily was turning out, leading him to blocking every member with the exception of a couple and taking his leave from the server. One of the unblocked members was Windfave, a man Adammk held no grudge on. This set upon a motion of turmoil and distrust in the server where Undo was also becoming increasingly unhappy with how things were turning out. Eventually when Adammk decided to come back to the server, the damage had already been done. Windfave decided it was his turn to leave discord and so, detached himself from the server, in a case of vise-versa where his only Sfamily member of contact was Adammk, done through Messenger.

After Windfave's disappearance, a heated debate followed. The worst argument Sfamily has ever seen in its history. The main people butting heads were Adammk and Undo, two people who have been in odds ever since the beginning. But this was the last fight they would ever have. After an incredible amount of personal attacks and emotional meltdowns, Adammk and Undo left the channel, without saying a word.

Soon after, Undo left a timer. A short message in announcements just giving a rough time, one that most members didn't notice as they were asleep. But the moment everyone finally woke up, they saw that, to their horror...

...Sfamily was gone.

-Adammk's Sfamily/ The Fallout-

In an instant Sfamily was completely gone, wiped off of the face of the earth. Undo's discord account was inactive and every video on Undo's youtube channel was gone. A fleeting hope that maybe, just maybe, Undo had simply private'd all the content, that he had simply kicked them all from Sfamily, deleting any remaining links. But as we soon found out, that was not the case.

In their haste they ran to the only place they had left where they could talk. The refugee server that Adammk had set up, making him, in the end, the defacto new owner. While the Refugee server spent time recuperating, one of the members noticed something interesting about Undo's youtube channel; he had posted a new video.

The video was cryptic in nature and as more and more of them came out it was clear that Undo was in the process of creating an ARG. This gave hope to some, but the proof pointed to the server already being deleted, so this ARG he was creating was utterly pointless in their eyes.

The members of Sfamily took it as an insult. Finally, Undo's rash judgement making had caught up to him, losing him all respect he had at the time. After the ARG concluded, Undo gave an opportunity to leave a single comment on his newest video, one he was guaranteed to read. The comment ended up being left by Adammk, the man who, alongside Undo's unstable mental being, helped bring down the community he now swore to keep alive. Adammk, in the end, simply said that there was nothing to say at all. Sfamily was not playing his game.

As time moved on opinions became less strong and people let go of the hatred for Undo's actions, never forgiving him, simply forgetting.

-Sfamily out of Context: Part 5-

Following the turmoil, Adammk proved that to be an Sfamily owner you must have atleast one extreme negative quirk. Undo had his impulsivity, Bob had his megalomania and Adam has his sheer fucking incompetence. At the release of OOC 5, Adammk decided to make a tiny little event out of it. His intention was to create mystery as to what was about to happen, by darkening his profile picture and typing out "48 hours" in announcements. Sadly the poor retard didn't realise he was mirroring the announcement Undo made before ending Sfamily as they knew it.

Following a series of damage control through Windfave, Adammk posted an image he made up on the spot. A puzzle of sorts that had white and black boxes painting a binary code. Adammk's intent was for it to be a short hint towards the reveal of OOC 5, but after the other members didn't understand and looked way too deeply into the messages, Adammk gave up and decided to release OOC 5 the next day.

-The Return-

After quite the time had passed, Bob received a strange message from an unknown discord account claiming to be Undo. Despite all that happened, in the end, Undo had decided to come back to Sfamily. After some arrangements and some mending, Bob and Adammk decided to give Undo another chance, not in the throne of owner, but as a normal member. A great big public apology happened when Undo finally joined back and the majority of the community decided to let him back into the group.

Undo brought with him the age of Linux. A dark and depressing age where all of the conversations would be exclusively about Linux. All in all, despite some shortcomings, everything seemed on the up and up. During that same time a new event formed inspired by Milos' "Sfamily be Like" series, and things were finally beginning to look up for the server.

But nothing is truly easy with Undopromosyo. Letting his impulsivity control him once more, he left the server and deleted his discord account, only coming back one final time after some convincing from Adammk, only to again leave, this time forever.

-SerbiaFamily: The Czechoslovakian-Serbian Republic-

Undo's departure left some unrest in Sfamily. Bob, despite being the loudest of the voices against Undo during the deletion, found himself one of his biggest supporters when he came back. Bob had vouched for Undo's return to owner status, something Undo himself understandably disagreed with. But this retaliation may not have been in favour of Undo, but a resistance towards Adammk.

Bob had been secretly forming plans to take over Adammk's Sfamily again by announcing them in the general chat. Adammk caught on to his plans and the two began to bicker, Bob stating that he had Undo's blessing and a rightful own to Sfamily, that Adammk was obliged to hand over owner to him. Adammk didn't care, which made Bob confirm his suspicions that Adammk was literally Hitler.

This emboldened Bob into using his Admin powers to attempt to impeach Adammk by bringing back the SerbiaFamily resistance, this time with the help of the Czech members of the server. Adammk was understandably terrified of the resistance, which forced his hand into creating a peace treaty with Bob, where Adammk would stay owner, but Bob had reign over Sfamily's image, changing the profile and name of the server in accordance to the alliance. Some might say this brought on what came back next.

-The Return: Milos-

At this point, Milos was an iconic villain of Sfamily. A valuable stepping-stone, nothing more. But one day, Pux, a close supporter of Milos' work, decided it was time to summon him back into the server. Milos spent no time making his presence known. For once, since the creation of Adammk's Sfamily, Bob and Adam were equally terrified and cooperative in trying to take Milos down, unsuccessfully. Despite retaliation, Milos ended up staying in the server, spreading chaos for as long as time would hold him there, his influence spreading in ways no one expected.

-Milos as Admin-

A post Milos server drew much interest, suddenly everyone had something they could focus on. Milos had introduced the server with the game "Deepwoken" and quickly rose to the position of admin, after what Adammk thought was a funny joke. This caused a whole new problem which lead to eventual turmoil. Milos being admin was a strange choice by Adammk in hindsight. Common sense claimed that this would spell the downfall for the server once more. With Admin you had unrestricted rights to delete every channel on your server, but Adammk had faith that Milos would rise above that temptation.

Despite Adammk's confidence, Milos' admin abuse was apparent. He used his powers to raid the server, invoking the name of the Covenant, and bullying the newest member of the server, Potato, who he vehemently hated. This lead Adammk to create a vote between all the active members to decide on the future of Milos' position in Sfamily. Friend or Foe? Deletion or no Deletion?

After some debating a shift towards the positive conclusion of his admin revoking was evident. What seemed like a set and done case, grew more complicated when Adammk returned Milos' admin only moments after the vote. To Adammk, Milos' admin status indicated a sign of trust, that the days of the Milos wars were long and over. Adammk trusted Milos so much that he made an archive of the entire server days later just in case.

-A Bleak Future/ Sfamily 4?-

Tensions began to rise in Sfamily, some of the members became incredibly irritated and impatient. The vote that Adammk had promised had been blatantly rigged and ignored in the eyes of the members for some unforeseen weak excuse of his. This seemed like it was it, something had to change with Sfamily, with one person deciding it was time to take initiative. The man who rivaled Adammk at every turn since the departure of Undo, Bob. In his crusade to contest Adammk's rule over Sfamily, he took a large drastic step that changed Sfamily's future forever.

Adammk woke up to a direct message from Bob, what he read shook him to his core. Bob had formed a new Sfamily behind Adammk's back in order to directly oppose his decision to keep Milos in the server. True colors finally shone in Adammk's eyes, an official coup had been formed, with a majority of Sfamily wanting Milos gone, and Adammk being no contest.

The bells began to ring as Sfamily lingered between a shallow death and a new era, with each of the coming decision molding the future of the community.

-The Arrival of Yaldabaath-

Conversation began to slow down in the original Sfamily and shifted to the new one as more and more members began to migrate to the new Bob controlled Sfamily. All the while not a word was heard from Adammk. Milos showed no bad intentions towards the server or the community anymore, yet his presence alone had eventually caused turmoil unlike any other, surpassing that of even the Undo era of the server.

For over a week, absolutely no notable events occurred as less and less messages were being sent through the former Sfamily. A stand-still was formed and the whereabouts of Adammk were beginning to be unknown as the members of the community barely reached any contact with him other than a couple of vague messages.

But then, out of nowhere, a new arrival had appeared in the server. The malevolent creator of the material world; Yaldaboath.

His aura of darkness did little to hide his masculine features, it was apparent that his sudden appearance followed by an even more sudden announcement spelled nothing good. Yaldaboath had claimed responsibility for the shocking sudden death of Adammk. When pressed for questions, Adammk had confirmed that he did indeed die. This began to concern the remaining members as Yaldaboath proceeded to make an offer. To unkill their former leader Adammk, the members had to locate 5 strings of code, all ending in the number 6, through various puzzles and hints handed by Yaldaboath himself.

The search for these codes were spearheaded by a furry named Ultimo, as some of the smartest members of the server gave up almost immediately.

Ultimo had guessed the majority of the codes.

After locating all the codes and uttering a single phrase, Adammk was finally unkilld. Adammk expressed gratitude and stepped onto the stage to announce what this entire Yaldaboath saga was leading up to. It was his final gift to the community. It was, Sfamily Out of Context: part 6. Although not being as ambitious as part 5, it was a welcome entry into the long series. What wasn't quite as welcoming, was what followed soon after. Adammk had made his final announcement once the stream was finished by releasing a document.

The document was titled, "I hate Sfamily".

-The End of a Server/ The End of Sfamily"-

This document was a direct response to the Milos drama that had unfolded not long ago. Adammk had addressed how the situation had affected him and his outlook on Sfamily. He had felt that the community had outstayed its welcome, that the ignorance that once fueled some of the most interesting conversations on the server was long gone, and trying to keep the server alive was a continuation of that ignorance. The not-so simple act of making Sfamily OOC 6 and the final big event as a whole was deeply taxing on Adammk and he simply had no more will to attempt and keep the server alive.

The bells rang louder and louder as Adammk announced that he was removing the admin status of every member and archiving the server soon after. In his own words "It would be an action that doesn't punish Milos for anything, but punishes everyone for nothing".

Although Bob's new server suited as a counterpart to the old one, Adammk had refused to partake in that server due to a personal dilemma, dooming it to a slow and painful death from a lack of activity. A countdown began to the end of the server, members were preparing to say goodbye to the longest lasting active Sfamily server in its history. Adammk decided that it was only fair that someone else in the server got the opportunity to utter its last words. He had chosen candidates from both sides of each respected field. It was decided that the last announcements would be made by Milos and long time Franz Ferdinand, Windfave.

To say the least, Milos' message was a throwaway Low Tier God meme telling the members to kill themselves, so Windfave was the only one who got to say something of substantial note. In his message he wrote the following loveletter to the server:

"I am glad I got to spend a year (or two) with you all on this newer server of SFamily after all the incidents from before. I genuinely enjoyed talking with you all, be it actual conversations, arguing or literally just shitposting! Whenever we had events it was real fun as well! We tried to keep our fun (for whom) server/group alive for as long as possible, and even when it all does not end here, it does for some. We all had things we did not agree with, be it our political or moral opinions or opinions about who can do what. I tried to always stand neutral and look at both sides, even though I would apply a bit of my opinions and then use that to lean to one or the other. For some this is the ending of an era, but for some, a new beginning. Whoever leaves forever or already left, I wish them a nice and comfortable rest of their lives.

I always stayed here like an addict since I see SFamily as a friend group, I always could open up here!

Although the end result is unfortunate and sad, and I may think that things could have ended somehow else, I was very happy to spend all the years with you here all until this very day. Glory to SFamily and an infinite moment of silence for the fallen. o7

I love you all even if we disagreed or agreed on some things"

-Present Day-

Present day Sfamily was, as predicted, a wasteland in a lack of activity. It stands nowhere near the highs it stood in its prime, just a husk and a reminder of what it used to be. All the conversations that used to openly happen on discord, have now moved to an Instagram group, where it seems to have settled down into daily casual conversations.

Sfamily as a community stood strong for years despite the odds. So many different people with so many different tastes and political opinions all flourished under the same roof. It was a one of a kind community that brought some of the fondest memories to its members. May a new chapter begin in the lives of everyone who partook in its journey.

Glory to Sfamily.