

It was a dark cloudy Saturday afternoon, A storm had rolled in and it wasn't long before the heavy downpour began. Dani stared out the window of her 3rd floor studio apartment. She was a fairly small girl, especially for being 20. She flopped down on her couch looking around the room, before resuming her painting, lost in thought remembering all the work she had done previously. She had her dream job, she was an artist, a well paid one, but she just never really seemed to find happiness.

She sighed dejectedly as she stared out the window, it had frosted over in the cool air, her breath fogging it as she stared out, seeing the Crimson, Goldenrod, and Orange leaves falling gently in the cool autumn air. Dani stood again sighing once more, walking to her coat closet, she dressed herself in a plush winter coat before grabbing her purse and walking out the door, to go on a quiet stroll thru central park.

The walk to the park was fairly short, considering where she lived. Not many things to see, besides the typical bustle of people on the streets. Dani sighed once more as she continued her walk, looking around as she entered the park. Everything seemed normal to her, kid on the playground, parents watching from the benches, and Couples walking through the park together. She sighed when she saw the couples though, it only reminded her much more of how alone she felt. She looked up to the sky, seeing the trees as she did, the plethora of colored leaves falling in the cold fall air as she looked up, praying for some kind of change. It was in this state of deep thinking, she ran into a Skunkette.

The girl wasn't particularly noticeable, her large plush tail, looked to be straining the girl, who continued walking, vanishing into the sudden crowd of people. Dani sighed again looking in the direct.

"I suppose she was too busy even to let me apologize." Dani whimpered a little, gently slumping as she did.

Dani grew hungrier as she walked, sighing again as she decided to stop at a hot dog vendor, it wasn't fabulous, but a fully loaded chili cheese dog didn't sound bad right now, she thought as she ordered, using some of the very little money she had left to pay for it. After getting her food, she began the not-so-long walk home.

Dani sighed, since she didn't eat the chili dog on the walk home. She had wished she'd honestly grabbed a fork too, but with how distracted she'd been that day, it was no surprise that she had forgotten the damn utensil.

"I really need to find my muse again, this depression is driving me down, and I don't think I can drop much further." She mumbled to herself, getting to her apartment complex with little to know trouble from her return trip through the park.

It was when Dani sat down to eat she began falling asleep, she managed to finish her cold chili dog before she went to bed but, only barely. Her bed wasn't a terrible one, but it was nothing amazing. The fully dressed girl sighed flopping on her bed face first into the pillow., falling asleep only moments later.

Dani groaned a little sitting up. She blinked her eyes a little, rubbing them gently. She assumed she was asleep still, since she saw a much more, how could she put it, cheerful world.

"What the heck is this place?" she yawned a lil asking herself, as she stood up, shakily, not hearing anyone approaching, until.

"Hey there^^" A small Skunkette shouted coming up to an unknowingly regressed Dani. The small skunkette giggled as she sat cheerfully on her rump after falling backwards with an audible crinkle. She seemed happy enough as it was, her red hair almost invisible against the sunset behind them. And her lovely purple eyes, looked like the gentle full moon in the sky.

"Eep! Who are you?" Dani asked trying to get back to her feet, not realizing how little clothing she was actually wearing at this moment.

"Me?^^ I'm Haru." The skunkette giggled as she looked down at Dani's padding "And seems I scared you, hehe sorrys ^^"

"Oh, oh! I didn't realize I even did that!" Dani squeaked trying to pull her short t-shirt down over the front of her padding.

"W...wait! W...what the heck! These aren't the clothes I went to bed I!" she shouted indignantly.

"Did you kidnap me!?" She shouted before she realized, she was talking to a skunkette, who was maybe 3 years old, and looking her in eyes, from a standing position.

"Y....You're a little kid....and I'm looking you in the eyes..." She spoke softly, Haru nodding, her smiling growing

"Which means...considering how...I'm Dressed...if you can call it that..." Dani continued, Haru positively beaming at this point

"HOW ON EARTH DID I BECOME A TODDLER!?!?!?" Dani screamed, bursting into a fully tantrum.

Haru squeaked a li'l as she watched Dani, she just blinked a little, Haru had known Dani to be odd, but this was just weird.

"I didn't think a wet diaper could make you this upset Dani, we li'l ones do that hehe^^" Haru said with a smile as she poked Dani's belly.

Dani whimpered a little looking around again, seeing they were what appeared to be a near empty playground, none of the other children were paying the pair any mind at all. Her heart was racing, she had no idea where, or given how her body looked when she was, completely unaware that she was in fact in a parallel world. The 3 tailed kit whined a little looking around more and more, which only caused her to begin hyperventilating until she passed out, falling to the ground.

~~~

Dani awoke quickly, jumping out of bed, falling tangled in the blankets as she hit the floor. Dani blinked a li'l as she looked around holding her head, had she really fallen? Dani sighed as she stood, checked herself out as she got up struggling against the blankets. Everything was in place, but... she felt wet, soaked in fact. She sighed getting up to go change, noting a few things felt...off. She blinked a li'l more as she looked down.

"Wait a minute...T...this? Have I always needed them?" she questioned herself as looked at the diaper around her waist.

"This just seems so wrong" she sighed dejectedly as walked to her dresser.

Dani grabbed a fresh diaper and took the wet one off, cleaning up before powdering herself and tapping the new one in place, then proceeded groggily to make her way back to bed and passed out as soon as she made contact with the pillow.

It was a few hours later she awoke with a start, as she realized she panicking a little realizing she forgot the blanket on the floor, so with a shiver she sat up, grabbing the bedding, before she finally checked her diaper again.

"wha? again!?" She sighed seeing she was wet, noting she could actually feel it. Dani with a worried expression waddled herself to the restroom, solely to check her temperature to assure she wasn't getting sick, with how spotty her memory was, she was still pretty sure she wasn't usually wet like this after every nap.

"Well I don't feel sick, guess I'm not too wet either, heehee^^" Dani mused as she got up rubbing her groaning belly, and headed into the kitchen. She grabbed the box of blueberry muffin flavored Mini Wheats and got herself a bowl of cereal as she sat down looking over at her painting stand. Dani sat and stared as she ate, finding something off.

"Hmmm did I get that much done already?" she asked herself with a mouth full of food. she shrugged as she finished up and got up to wash the bowl. She dried her hands looking at her padding thinking before heading off to her room to get it off and grab a change of cloths.

"what the!?" Dani cried as she opened the underwear drawer. her bras were on the left side as normal, but her panties, all were gone, replaced with diapers, all in her size too.

After going through all her other stuff, she soon found that all the panties she remembered having were non-existent. With a bashful sigh she grabbed a diaper along with the rest of a baggy outfit and moved for the bathroom.

She slipped everything off, tossing the very wet diaper into the trash, not noticing there were other ones in it, she grumbled as she clicked the water on, dialing the temperature to a nice steamy warm as she stepped in.

"must be a joke?" she thought blushing as she went thru her mind trying to figure it out. She cleaned up, rubbing a nice silky fur shampoo thru her fur as she purred under the water. Dani was just slightly confused to the numb feeling under her paws as she cleaned her lower regions, but accounted it towards sleepiness and finally finished up, stepping out and wrapping herself in a fluffy towel and began to dry off.

She sat on the edge of the tub blushing again as she looked at her diaper, finally laying down as she opened it up and got herself powdered before taping it into place. She squeaked as she sat up with a shiver, and quickly pulled the other cloths on

"maybe a walk will help clear my mind" Dani thought as she checked to make sure she was covered and diaper hidden as she stepped out the door and down the stairs into the outside world.

She looked left and right, finally picking the direction of the park. If anything a new idea for a painting could be found. It was when she got to the park and followed a small wooded path after pulling her shirt down for the 12th time unnecessarily, that things got interesting.

It was almost ghostly at first, a skunky girl came over to her, she seemed familiar to Dani, dressed in a Medieval-esque outfit, a dark red tunic and brown pants. She also had a Flower in her hair behind her right ear, then it struck her.

"Melodi!?" she cried "M-Melodi i-it can't be."

Melodi turned and smiled, sweeping her long tortoiseshell coloured scarf behind her reaching out, as Dani reached back it felt like an icy prickling thru her arm, and Melodi faded out of view, before shouting from behind her.

"hey~^^" Melodi shouted as Dani spun around. "good to see you again after so long, or has it been?^^"

"how did?" Dani looked at her confused. "you went thru me and..."

"it's complicated, just think magic^^" Melodi giggled. "anyway were you headed?"

"I was out for a walk, but now, what are you doing here?" Dani asked, a sparkle in her eyes "I didn't expect to see you here!"

"Ahh well probably the same as you then^^" Melodi answered as the two headed slowly out on the wooded path and into a crowd of canines, likely a collage niche.

"well well two pretty ladies!" one shouted as the other chuckled and joined in looking at Dani and Melodi.

"Eep! lets get out of here" Melodi whispered as Dani simply blushed, suddenly stopping as she smoothed her shirt down, and feeling that her padding was wet.

"what the--" Dani started but was cut short as she began to feel a slight pressure on her rump, quickly realizing she was messing, and hadn't even felt it, let alone herself wetting at all. All still a numb feeling as she squeaked blushing unable to stop it in the slightest

"oh my I think you startled her!" One boy shouted noticing her pants having a very slight bulge now, as the others all stopped and looked, before laughing and falling against each other in hysterics.

Melodi glared at them before grabbing the teary eyed Dani's paw and running off with her behind to a family bathroom on the edge of the park.

"Are you ok Dani?" melodi asked as she locked the door, Dani had sat down before realizing she was still messy, and simply tried to hide behind her tail

"um you don't have a spare to change into do you?" Melodi asked somewhat embarrassed by the question she asked as she blushed slightly herself.

"I-I forgot" Dani replied shortly after, "Didn't know this would happen"

Melodi helped her up to her feet and opened the door looking out.

"no ones around, want to head for your place now?" Melodi asked, the nervous Dani who only nodded before stepping out looking around before heading towards her home, a distinct waddle from the mess in her padding as she clung to Melodi, keeping her close the whole way

<add content>

"Wha!?" Dani sat up with a jolt, suddenly feeling a sharp pain shoot thru her body as she fell backwards in pain.

"oh she's awake!" someone shouted, a nurse Dani saw as she opened her eyes towards the movement in the room.

"oh sweetie are you okay?" A worried worker from the orphanage asked coming over with a cubby Melodi behind her.

"she's awake^^" Melodi giggled coming over to the side of the bed.

Dani looked around first before laying her eyes on Melodi, as she sat up slowly.

"it hurts though..." Dani murmured.

"you had a nasty fall, Dani, you're lucky to be alright." the orphanage worker said coming over.

Dani didn't know it yet, but the fall had done permanent damage, leaving her unable to ever control her bathroom needs. The Nurse explained this as best she could, with Melodi to comfort her.

<add content>

"So you are happy now right?^^" Melodi ask coming over as She swept her scarf back behind her, A starry gaze as she leaned forward, paws on her knees smiling.

"I-I am, yes" Dani responded looking up at her from her seat as she felt herself grow warm inciting a small blush. "I feel better then I have, and it's nice"

"good^^ think of it as a wish coming true"

"Oh?" Dani asked a little puzzled "I mean I like this and it's nice but what do you mean?"