We very much value and protect your privacy. We don't take or keep any data that is not for the sole purpose of what this app does, but, we do use your device's speech recognition services, which are provided by other unaffiliated companies, which might use your speech according to their own policies.

In order to transcribe your voice, we use your device's Android's built-in SpeechRecognizer. Therefore, everything you say might be sent to any Speech Recognition Service enabled on your Android device, and these services might use that speech according to their own independent policies. We are not and cannot be, in any way, responsible to how these speech recognition services enabled on your device use your speech. (On most devices you should be able to view and change your device's speech recognition services through your device's Settings.)
