Solution

SL: How to dominate your next match!

When you have to face an opponent, what do you honestly feel?

Is it confidence and happiness that you will put your skills to the test and crush them?

Do you feel like the person, the team, loves and adores for his success and of whom the coach is proud?

Or is it a nervous and self-doubting feeling that you will lose the ball and let your teammates down once again?

Here is the worst part,

No matter how hard you practice, you won't get any stronger.

Don't believe me,

Then go and continue being a loser, training all day and not actually getting anywhere.

But if you are tired of being weak on the field and unappreciated,

And you're ready to do what it takes to become an elite midfielder, dominating the opposition, no matter how strong it is,
