

Media kit – Patricia Porter - Leading to learning

Summary

It is critical that parents learn how to take charge of their child's education. Schools can't do it all. Unfortunately, although parents know they have a role to play in helping children learn, they don't know what that role is, which leads to confusion, frustration and may even prevent children learning.

My years of teaching experience, specialized training and research has provided me with a unique insight into how parents can increase their child's ability to learn. I have developed a proprietary on-line system that provides parents with proven, practical strategies that address their child's specific needs so that he or she can succeed in school and in life.

I'm 76 years old. I should be just looking after my pussy cat . But parents are desperate for support and no one is giving it to them.

List of topics I can speak about

- How to stop guessing and start discovering the support your child needs.
- How to work with your child's school so he or she gets the education they need and deserve.
- 'Could do better' – Three steps to help your child overcome learning hurdles and become the learner you know that he or she could be.
- The four stages of the learning process – and why they matter.
- Children learn in different ways. How does your child learn best and why you need to know.

Sample of articles – please check www.leadingtolearning.com for examples of blog articles.

3 Bios

Dr. Patricia Porter is an educator whose passion is helping parents resolve educational issues in school aged children.

Dr. Patricia Porter provides parents with simple, effective tools and proven, practical programs to resolve educational issues in school-aged children. She has created The Porter Process, a five step program that diagnoses children's learning issues and offers strategies parents can use at home to increase their child's ability to learn.

Dr. Patricia Porter – a retired educator – has developed a proprietary system that provides parents with proven, practical strategies that address their child's specific learning needs so that he or she can succeed in school and in life.

She believes that parents have the ability to make a difference in their child's learning life when they stop guessing what type of support their child needs and start discovering why their child 'could do better'. By providing the type of support that helps children overcome hurdles to learning children are able to learn anything, anywhere, from anyone and reach their full learning potential.

Contact information

Email: patricia@leadingtolearning.com

Mobile: 778 999 9449

Website: www.leadingtolearning.com

Headshots – 1200 wide, 1800 wide

Resources for parents – most free <https://leadingtolearning.com/resources/>

Link to testimonial page

<https://leadingtolearning.com/about-us/>

I have more testimonials if you need to see them.