

THE DAILY STATESMAN

Printing News & Truth Since 1917

FROM THE OFFICE OF THE CHIEF EDITOR OF THE DAILY STATESMAN

Recently, a complaint has been raised to the Federal Elections Commission of the United States regarding a political image displayed in a recent issue of The Daily Statesman's newspaper outlet. The complaint statement alleges that Senator Whitey paid The Daily Statesman for this image to be displayed and that he is therefore legally responsible for it on grounds pursuant to 52 U.S. Code § 30109(a)(1). This has caused a significant amount of unrest across America as accusations have been thrown from both sides of the political spectrum. The purpose of this statement is to assert the truth of the matter.

I wish to affirm to the people of the United States that Senator Whitey was in no way responsible for this advertisement's creation, position, or funding. It was created by The Daily Statesman's political cartoonists. Therefore, Senator Whitey is not legally responsible for the advertisement nor can he be considered as responsible for upholding the Act referenced in the statement pursuant to this advertisement.

Given that Whitey is not responsible for this advertisement's creation or funding, the Federal Elections Commission should decline all accusations that are brought against the Senator. Furthermore, The Daily Statesman will be donating $2,000 to the Whitey For Senate Campaign in order to apologize to the Senator for any trouble that has been caused for him by these events.

In addition, The Daily Statesman hereby pledges to henceforth disclose under all political advertisements and cartoons whether they have been designed by The Daily Statesman or whether they have been created and funded by an external source, in order to avoid any further confusion regarding this matter. In addition, The Daily Statesman wishes to thank the complainant, ModelAinin, for bringing this matter to our attention so that we can continue to serve the public interests to the best of our ability and uphold our pledge to Print News & Truth Since 1917! We will be offering to donate $10,000 to the Federal Elections Commission to pay for the costs of any proceedings which have occurred as a result of these events.

Forever a Servant of America,

Stephen Rothschild
Chief Editor of The Daily Statesman
