Kiyadh Burt is the Director of Hope Policy Institute (HOPE). In this position, he serves as primary liaison with advocacy partners locally, regionally and nationally. He works to advance HOPE's mission of financial inclusion for historically undeserved communities through oversight of analysis and visualization of HOPE programmatic activities for the production of reports, briefs, and blogs.

Notably, he has testified before the House Financial Services subcommittee on Housing, Community Development on solutions to increase homeownership in persistent poverty communities in the Deep South. He has also appeared in the PBS documentary "The Truth about Black Banks and the Racial Wealth Gap". He leads Hope's work on inequities in capital access in the CDFI industry, economic mobility, criminal justice reform, and small business capital access. Throughout his tenure at HOPE, his breadth of work includes issues on consumer protections, financial inclusion, affordable housing, and access to fresh food.
