

Welcome back, Digital Scholars. We hope you had a wonderful summer. Our team had a busy summer planning for the future of Digital Scholarship at Binghamton. It is going to be an exciting year!

A Sneak Peak into 2025

[bartle library picture?]

When you first come on campus this semester, you may notice that all the scaffolding around the library is down. Construction on the third floor finished this summer after several years of careful renovations. There is still a lot to happen before it is open, but when it does, so will the new Digital Scholarship Center space. Compared to our current pilot Center, the space is much bigger with built-in technology and flexible furniture. There will be designated spaces for large group instruction, events, and one-on-one consultations. The DS Team is tentatively planning to move our operations there starting in the spring semester. More to come on this exciting project!

Events

To open the semester, the DS Team will be hosting a lunch social along with our digital humanities community members to connect digital scholars across campus. Feast with us in the pilot Digital Scholarship Center (SL-209) from noon – 2 p.m. Friday, September 6. Bring your Digital Scholarship ideas, questions and appetite! Register or walk in.

We are in the process of planning two other special events for the fall. We will be confirming them in future newsletters and putting out calls for participants.

National Podcasting Day (pending)*

Contest for Undergraduates and Graduate Students

Taking submissions of podcasting episodes/assignments

Winners announced on National Podcasting Day

First prize: $50 gift card

Second prize: $25 gift card

All entries will be featured on in The ORB

Text Analysis Showcase (pending)*

8-10 minute presentations on text analysis projects being done on campus

There will be a call for presenters in the coming weeks

All groups on campus are welcome to present and/or attend

Thursday, November 14 | 1-3pm

Digital Scholarship Center

Digital Scholarship Pop-Ups

[graphic?]

The DS Team will host Digital Scholarship pop-ups this fall to advertise the different tech and project tools we support. Each will have a different theme that will include information and activities. DS Librarians will be available to consult on projects and answer any questions about the theme or other DS work. Stop by the Bartle Library lobby and say hi! More information can be found on the B-Engaged event page.

Text Analysis Tools

Thursday, September 12 | 1-3pm

Podcasting Tech and Tools

Monday, September 30 | 1-3pm

Data Visualization Tools

Wednesday, October 16 | 1-3pm

Project Management Tools

Tuesday, November 5 | 1-3pm

Workshops

[graphic]

The DS team is offering three workshop series this semester. Attendance is flexible. You are welcome to attend all in the series or drop in for specific topics. All sessions will be in person in the pilot Digital Scholarship Center (SL 209). Click on the link to register and see individual sessions.

Data Analysis with R

Tuesdays 1:15-2:40pm

September 10, 24, October 15, 29, November 12

Automating with Python: Beginner workflows for archivists \(and anyone!\)

Thursdays 10:05-11:30am

September 12, 26, October 10, 24, November 14

DIY Digital CV and Portfolio: Minimal Computing with HTML/CSS

Tuesdays 10:05-11:30am

September 17, October 1, 22, November 5