

Subject line: It's not your fault.

You told yourself you would become rich last year. Where did the 365 days go? Can you look back over the past year and say with pride that you have achieved something concrete?

Or are you instead filled with self-loathing over your unfulfilled promises.

Your anger is justified and necessary to create change, but I'm here to tell you it's not your fault that you still fail.

You keep falling off the bandwagon because you are travelling to a destination without a map. Are you really so surprised you got lost?

No, a 2 hour youtube course is not enough of a map to guide you to success. A $100 make money online course should do it right? WRONG. Acquiring knowledge without systems in place to successfully apply it is like reading for an exam without a pen to write it.

You need to put systems in place to eradicate complacency and confusion. But you must be aware by now that you can't do it yourself. You need a community.

There is none better than the soldiers of [Business name]. Join over 50,000 hungry lions determined to tear through life and keep you accountable to do the same. Learn the guarded secrets of modern wealth creation from men who have risen to the top of the monetary food chain.

Sand continues to fall through the hourglass of life whether you become successful or not. The choice is yours.
