Keep yourself safe by avoiding alcohol before getting behind the wheel. Understanding the Potential Penalties of a DUI conviction and how a Maryland DUI lawyer can help:

Potential Penalties For A DUI Conviction!

The same penalties for a DUI conviction vary from state to state and depend on the details of your case, including whether or not it is your first offense.

However, there are several legal consequences that you could face if convicted. These include:

Fines

Depending on the circumstances of your case, you could be required to pay fines as part of your punishment.

Jail Time

Depending on the severity of your offense, you could be sentenced to jail time ranging from several days to several months.

Furthermore, the potential jail time could increase if anyone was injured due to your offense.

License Suspension

A DUI conviction typically results in having your driver's license suspended for up to one year. In some cases, it may even be revoked altogether.

Probation Before Judgement

Probation before Judgment (PBJ) is a possible outcome for certain first-time DUI offenses.

This sentence typically involves being placed on probation for some time, during which you must abide by certain conditions (such as completing an alcohol education course).

If the terms of your probation are successfully met, your conviction can be removed from your criminal record.

How Can an Attorney Help?

When faced with a DUI charge, it's crucial to have an experienced attorney. It would help if you spoke with an experienced attorney as soon as possible.

An attorney can help build a strong defense and minimize the potential penalties associated with your case.

An attorney can also help negotiate for reduced charges or alternative sentences in some cases. A skilled Maryland DWI lawyer can assess your unique situation and provide you with the best advice possible.

Conclusion:

A DUI conviction carries severe consequences regarding fines, jail time, license suspension, and other penalties.
