Article 2, Sec 1: Presidential requirement – “I do solemnly swear (or affirm) that I will faithfully execute the Office of the President of the United States, and will to the best of my ability preserve protect, and defend the Constitution of the United States.”

As you note below, Art/1 Sec. 8 of that Constitution gives the legal authority to establish immigration law to Congress, not the President.

I assume you would agree that the President has absolutely no authority to change any law.

If you contend a President has authority to interpret and enforce law as they see fit, Congress and the voters be damned, Selby you have just endorsed a dictatorship to replace our republic, and destroyed the American Rule of Law.

To even consider what you argumentatively suggest is madness. Any future President could ignore any law on the books they chose.
