INTRODUCTION

The introduction contains the research background concisely, concisely, and clearly; problem formulation, research objectives; as well as data related to the substance of the study. Does not contain many references, except those of a regulatory nature, laws, regulations, and the like. Writing narratively does not need to be given special subtitles. Included in writing operational definitions, if deemed necessary, are also written narratively. (Font Times New Roman, size 12, spasi 1,5, justify)

RESULTS AND DISCUSSION

This section contains data analysis and interpretation of the results. Results can be presented with tables or graphs to clarify the results verbally because sometimes the appearance of an illustration is more complete and informative than the display in the form of a narrative. This section must answer the problem or research hypothesis that has been formulated previously. (Font Times New Roman, size 12, spasi 1,5, justify)

The conclusion must be related to the title and answer the formulation or purpose of the study. Do not make statements that are not adequately supported by your findings. Write down improvements made to industrial engineering or science in general. Do not make further discussions, repeat abstracts, or just list the results of the study. Don't use bullet points, use paragraph sentences instead. (Font Times New Roman, size 12, spasi 1,5, justify)
