

Digital Technologies, LLC is a software company. We develop products, providing information security. We place great value on honesty and clarity, and we are committed to building a strong and lasting relationship with you based on trust and mutual benefit. Part of this commitment means safeguarding and respecting your privacy and your choices. Respecting your privacy is essential to us. This is why we set out our full Privacy Policy below.

We promise:

1. We respect your privacy and your choices.
2. We make sure that privacy and security are embedded in everything we do.
3. We will not send you marketing communications unless you have asked us to. You can change your mind at any time.
4. We will never sell your personal data.
5. We are committed to keeping your personal data safe and secure. This includes only working with trusted partners.
6. We are committed to being open and transparent about how we use your personal data.
7. We will not use your personal data in ways that we have not told you about.
8. We respect your rights, and will always try to accommodate your requests as far as is possible, in line with our own legal and operational responsibilities.

For more information about our privacy practices, below we set out what types of personal data we might collect or hold about you, how we use it, who we share it with, how we protect it and keep it secure, and your rights around your personal data. Note that all of the information set out below may not apply to you. We have explained below an overview of all possible situations in which we could interact together, and one or more of these may apply to you depending on how you have interacted with us.

When you share personal data with us or when we collect personal data about you, we will use it in line with this Privacy Policy. Please read this information carefully. If you have any questions or concerns about your personal data, please contact us at info@digt.com

Please note that you must be at least 13 years old or older to use our services, or older where the terms for a specific service require this.

WHO WE ARE

Digital Technologies, LLC is responsible for the personal data that you share with us. When we say “Digital Technologies, LLC”, “us”, “our” or “we”, this is who we are referring to. Digital Technologies, LLC is the “data controller” for the purposes of applicable data protection laws. Please see the “Contact Us” section for our contact details.

WHAT IS PERSONAL DATA?

“Personal data” means any information or pieces of information that could identify you either directly (e.g. your name) or indirectly (e.g. through pseudonymised data, such as a unique ID number). This means that personal data includes things like email/home addresses, usernames, profile pictures, personal preferences, user generated content, financial information, and health information. It could also include unique numerical identifiers like your computer’s IP address or your mobile device’s MAC address, as well as cookies. This Privacy Policy covers all personal data about you that is collected and used by Digital Technologies, LLC.

WHAT PERSONAL DATA DO WE COLLECT FROM YOU AND HOW DO WE USE IT?

You, the consumer, are our priority. You drive what we do. We love hearing from you, learning about you, and developing products that you enjoy. At Digital Technologies, LLC, our ambition is to build relationships based on transparency and mutual trust. We know that many of you might want to interact with us and because of this, there are many ways that you might share your personal data with us, and ways that we might collect it.

HOW DO WE COLLECT OR RECEIVE YOUR PERSONAL DATA?

We might collect or receive personal data from you via our websites, forms, apps, devices, Digital Technologies, LLC products or brand pages on social media or otherwise. Sometimes you give this to us directly (e.g. when you create an account, when you contact us, when you purchase from our websites or stores), sometimes we collect it (e.g. using cookies to understand how you use our websites and apps) or sometimes we receive your personal data from other third parties, including other DIGT Group entities.

In the table below, we explain:

1. In what context is your personal data collected? This column explains what activity or scenario you are involved in when we use or collect your personal data. For example, whether you are making a purchase, signing up to a newsletter, or browsing a website.
2. What personal data may we hold about you? This column explains what types of personal data we may collect when you take part in a particular activity.
3. How and why do we use it? This column explains what we do with your personal data, and the purposes for collecting and using it.
4. What is our legal basis for using your personal data? Whenever we use your personal data, we will have a legal basis to do this. For example, you have asked us to provide a service, you have given us your consent, or we have a legitimate interest in using your personal data.

The legal basis for the processing of your personal data can be:

- Your consent – This applies where you provide your personal data and specifically consent to us using it to provide you with a specific service, for example, so that: 1.

you can receive marketing communications from us. If you later ask us to stop sending you marketing communications, we need to keep some of your personal data on a suppression list so that we can make sure we do not contact you again. This is a legal obligation; and

2. we can store certain cookies on your device. We may place targeted advertising cookies (these allow us to tailor services we offer, specifically to you), analytical cookies (these are also known as performance cookies and measure/record your interaction with our site so we can make improvements) on your device.

Please see the Cookie Settings section of our websites for more information on the different types of cookies we use, and their purpose.

- The performance of a contract – This applies where you provide us with your personal data in order for us to provide you with a service (e.g. you ask us to create a customer account for you or you wish to purchase a product and we can manage the associated logistics).

- Our legitimate interests – This applies where you provide us with your personal data and we use it to:

1. Improve our products and services. We may use your personal data to better understand your needs and expectations when it comes to the products and services we offer. This understanding means we can improve our products and services so they better match your needs. This might involve performing analytics on how you use our products/ services, websites/apps/devices and market research and surveys or trying out new functions which we think you might like based on what we know about you

2. better engage with you. We may use your personal data to encourage you to be more actively engaged with our products and brands and increase your overall brand engagement and awareness. One way we do this is by tailoring the marketing communications we send you so that you receive the information most relevant to you. 3.

prevent fraud or criminal activity. We may use your personal data so we can action any payment you make when you purchase any of our products and/or services (including checking that your payment is free from fraud or other fraudulent or suspicious activity).

4. secure our tools: We may use your personal data to keep our tools (websites/apps/devices) safe and secure. This involves making sure our tools are working properly, and that your personal data is kept secure.

- To comply with a legal obligation – This is where you provide us with your personal data which we need to keep for our legal reasons (e.g. when you make a purchase we need to keep your transaction information to comply with our tax and financial reporting obligations).

The table below sets out which legal basis we rely on when processing your personal data for each context. When we collect personal data, we will indicate which types of personal data are mandatory via asterisks. Some of the personal data we request from you are either necessary for us to:

- Perform our contract with you (e.g. to deliver the software you have purchased on our websites/apps);
- Provide you with a service you have asked for (e.g. to provide you with a newsletter);
- Comply with legal requirements (e.g. invoicing).

If you do not provide the personal data marked with an asterisk, this may affect the goods and services that we can provide.

AUTOMATED DECISION MAKING

Automated decision making means the ability to make decisions using technology, without human involvement. We may use automated decision making techniques for the purposes of securing transactions placed through our websites/apps and/or devices against fraud. In addition, we may use a third party provider's solution to protect our systems, assets etc. against fraud. The method of fraud detection is based on a number of different data prediction and data intelligence techniques that may change over time, to keep up with technological advancement. These may include, for example, simple comparisons, or association, clustering, prediction and outlier detections using intelligent agents, data fusion and data mining techniques. This fraud detection process may be completely automated or may involve some human intervention where the final decision is taken by a person. In all cases, we take all reasonable precautions and safeguards to limit access to your data. As a result of automatic fraud detection, you may: (i) experience a delay in the processing of your order/request whilst we review your transaction; and/or (ii) be limited or excluded from using a service if a risk of fraud is identified. You have the right to access the information on which we base our decision. Please see "Your Rights and Choices" section below.

PROFILING

When we send or display personalised communications or content, we may use a technique known as "profiling" (or "insights"). This means any form of automated processing of personal data to evaluate certain personal aspects about an individual, in particular to analyse or predict aspects concerning their personal preferences, interests, economic situation, reliability, behaviour, location, or movements. This means that we may collect personal data about you in the different scenarios mentioned in the table above, and use this data to analyse, evaluate, or predict your personal preferences, interests, behaviour and/or location. Based on our analysis, we may send or display communications and/or content specifically tailored to your interests and/or needs. We ensure that we have an appropriate legal basis to process your personal data when conducting profiling activities (e.g., consent). You may have the right to object at any time to the use of your personal data for "profiling". Please see "Your Rights and Choices" section below.

JOINT CONTROLLERS

We are always responsible for personal data that we collect about you. In some cases, for example when we collaborate with our trusted partners, we may be jointly responsible with those partners for protecting your personal data.

Our data protection commitments as joint controllers are as follows:

- We will agree the respective roles and responsibilities of each party involved;
- We will make sure that both parties are transparent about the joint purposes for processing your personal data, and explain how your personal data is used for these purposes; and
- We will make sure that you are always able to exercise your legal rights.

Where we work jointly with another party, we will inform you about your rights and other important information at the point we ask for your personal data.

WHO MAY ACCESS YOUR PERSONAL DATA?

First, we want to be clear that we do not sell your personal data. We may share your personal data within DIGT Group.

We may share your personal data for marketing purposes with third parties or DIGT Group entities.

We only share your personal data with third parties for direct marketing purposes with your consent. In this context, your personal data is processed by the third party acting as a controller, and its own terms and conditions, as well as its privacy policy will apply to its processing. You should review their documentation carefully before consenting to the disclosure of your personal data to that third party

Your personal data may also be processed on our behalf by our trusted third party suppliers.

We rely on trusted third parties to perform a range of business operations on our behalf. We only provide them with the information they need to perform the service, and we require that they do not use your personal data for any other purpose. We always use our best efforts to ensure that all third parties we work with will keep your personal data secure. For example, we may entrust services that require the processing of your personal data to:

- Third parties that assist and help us in providing digital and e-commerce services such as social listening, identity management, ratings and reviews, CRM, web analytics and search engine, user generated content curation tools;
- Advertising, marketing, digital and social media agencies to help us to deliver advertising, marketing, and campaigns, to analyse their effectiveness, and to manage your contact, questions and our relationship;
- Third parties that assist and help us in providing IT services, such as platform providers, hosting services, maintenance and support on our databases as well as on our software and applications;
- Third parties that provide us with consulting services in the field of market research and analytics, collect feedback and conduct market surveys on our products, services and otherwise for customer relationship management purposes;
- Payment service providers and credit reference agencies for the purpose of assessing your credit score and verifying your details where this is a condition of entering into a contract with you.

We may also disclose your personal data to third parties:

- If we are under a duty to disclose or share your personal data in order to comply with a legal obligation, or in order to enforce or apply our terms of use/sales or other terms and conditions you have agreed to; or to protect the rights, property, or safety of Digital Technologies, our consumers, or others.
- In other circumstances if we have your consent or we are permitted to do so by law.

We may disclose your personal data to our partners:

- In the event the service you use, subscribe to, or the event in which you participate was co-created by Digital Technologies and a partner (for example, a co-branded app, an event/joint promotion or survey run in partnership with a third party). In such cases, Digital Technologies and the partner will process your personal data each for their own purposes and as such your personal data will be processed:
 - By Digital Technologies in accordance with this Privacy Policy;
 - By the partner acting also as a data controller and its privacy policy will govern the processing of your personal data for its purposes.
- To display Digital Technologies content (for example recommended products/services) on our partners' sites where you have agreed to receive advertising that is tailored to you (either by accepting our or our partners' cookies, or by consenting to receive our marketing). Where you accept our cookie from our partners, they may store a cookie on your device and so you should read their privacy and cookies policy. In the other cases, we only share data that does not directly identify you with our partners. Our partners will then determine which of our products/services to display to visitors of their websites.
- We may publish content created by third parties. Where we do this, the third party may place a cookie on your device if you read this content. Please read the third parties' Cookie Policy for details on what information they may gather from the cookie, and how it is used.
- When we use Google advertising services on our websites, apps and/or devices. Google will access and use your personal data when we utilise their services. If you would like to learn more about how Google uses your personal data in this context, please review their Google Privacy & Terms available here which govern these services and data processing.

Information that Facebook collects and shares with us:

- All Facebook features and services available on our websites, apps and/or devices are governed by the Facebook Data Policy. Please review this policy if you would like more information on your privacy rights and settings options.
- When using any of our websites/apps and/or devices, you may be able to:
 - sign-in with your Facebook login. If you do so, you consent to share some of your public profile information with us;
 - use the Facebook social plug-ins, such as “like” or “share” to share our content, or your user generated content on the Facebook platform; ○ accept cookies from our website/apps (also known as “Facebook Pixels”). These types of cookies help us understand your activity including for example, information about your device, how you use our services, any purchases you make and the ads you see, whether or not you have a Facebook account or are logged into Facebook.
- When you use any Facebook features, we collect your data to help us to:
 - show you ads you might be interested in on Facebook or any of its other services (Instagram, Messenger etc.); and
 - measure and analyse the effectiveness of our websites, apps and/or devices.
- We may also use any personal data you provide us with on our websites, apps and/or devices (e.g. your name, email address, gender and phone number), to identify you on Facebook or any of its other services (Instagram, Messenger etc.), in order to show you ads that are more relevant for you. While doing this, Facebook will not share your personal data and will delete the information promptly after the matching process is complete.

WHERE WE STORE YOUR PERSONAL DATA

The personal data that we collect from you may be transferred to, accessed in, and stored at, a destination outside the European Union. It may also be processed by staff operating outside the European Union, who work for us or for one of our service providers.

Where Digital Technologies transfers personal data outside of the European Union, this will be done in a secure and lawful way. As some countries may not have laws governing the use and transfer of personal data, we will take steps to make sure that third parties adhere to the commitments set out in this Privacy Policy. These steps may include reviewing third parties' privacy and security standards, and/or entering into appropriate contracts (on the basis of the template adopted by the applicable regulator or the EU Commission and available via its homepage).

For further information, please contact us as per the "Contact" section below.

HOW LONG DO WE KEEP YOUR PERSONAL DATA

We will keep your personal data for as long as we need it to provide you with your requested service(s) or to meet our commercial or legal obligations. To determine the retention period of your personal data, we consider several criteria to make sure that we do not keep your personal data for longer than is necessary or appropriate. These criteria include:

- The purpose for which we hold your personal data;
- Our legal and regulatory obligations in relation to that personal data, for example any financial reporting obligations;
- Whether our relationship with you is ongoing, for example, you have an active account with one or more of our brands, you continue to receive marketing communications, or you regularly browse or purchase off our websites/apps);
- Whether you are no longer actively participating or engaging with our brands, for example, you do not open our emails, visit our websites, or share user generated content;

- Any specific requests from you in relation to the deletion of your personal data; and
- Our legitimate business interests in relation to managing our own rights, for example the defence of any claims, or for statistical purposes.

In particular, we retain certain personal data for the following periods:

- Where you purchase products and services, we keep your personal data for the duration of our contractual relationship;
- Where you participate in a promotional offer, we keep your personal data for the duration of the promotional offer;
- Where you have consented to receive marketing, we keep your personal data until you: (ii) request we delete your personal data; or (iii) after a period of inactivity (i.e. where you have not interacted with us for a period of time). This period is defined in accordance with local regulations and guidance;
- Where cookies are placed on your computer, they are stored for as long as necessary to achieve their purposes (e.g. for the duration of a session for shopping cart cookies or session ID cookies) and otherwise for a period defined in accordance with local regulations and guidance.

When we no longer need to use your personal data, it is removed from our systems and records, or anonymised so that you can no longer be identified from it.

IS MY PERSONAL DATA SECURE?

We are committed to keeping your personal data secure, and taking all reasonable precautions to do so. We contractually require that trusted third parties who handle your personal data for us do the same. We always do our best to protect your personal data and once we have received your personal data, we use strict procedures and security features to try to prevent unauthorised access. As no transmission of information via the internet is completely secure, we cannot guarantee the security of your personal data transmitted to our site although. Any transmission is therefore at your own risk.

LINKS TO THIRD PARTY SITES AND SOCIAL LOGIN

Our websites/apps may, from time to time, contain links to and from the websites of our partner networks, advertisers and/or affiliates. If you follow a link to any of these websites, please note that these websites have their own privacy policies and that we do not accept any responsibility or liability for these policies. Please check these policies before you share any personal data with these websites. We may also offer you the opportunity to use your social media login when interacting with our websites/apps. If you do so, please be aware that you will be sharing your profile information with us. The personal data that is shared will depend on your social media platform settings. Please visit the relevant social media platform and review its privacy policy to understand how your personal data is shared and used in this context.

SOCIAL MEDIA AND USER GENERATED CONTENT

Some of our websites and apps allow users to submit their own content. Please remember that any content submitted to our social media platforms can be viewed by the public, and you should be cautious about providing certain personal data e.g. financial information or address details. We are not responsible for any actions taken by other individuals if you post personal data on one of our social media platforms and we recommend that you do not share such information.

YOUR RIGHTS AND CHOICES

Digital Technologies respect your right to privacy: it is important that you are able to control your personal data. You may have the following rights:

The right to be informed You have the right to be provided with clear, transparent and easily understandable information about how we use your personal data, and your rights. This is why we are providing you with the information in this Privacy Policy.

The right of access	You have the right to access any personal data we hold about you (subject to certain restrictions). In exceptional circumstances we may charge a reasonable fee for providing such access but only where permitted by law (e.g. where your request is manifestly unfounded or excessive).

The right to rectification	You have the right to have your personal data rectified if it is incorrect or outdated and/or completed if it is incomplete. If you have an account, it may be easier to correct your own personal data via your “My Account” function.
The right to erasure/right to be forgotten	In some cases, you have the right to have your personal data erased or deleted. Note this is not an absolute right, as we may have legal or legitimate grounds for retaining your personal data.

The right to object to direct marketing, including profiling	You can unsubscribe or opt out of our direct marketing communication at any time. The easiest way to do this is by clicking on the “unsubscribe” link in any email or communication we send you or follow any other opt-out instructions communicated to you. In circumstances where you have the right to object to profiling you should contact us using the details below.

The right to withdraw consent at any time for and personal data processing based on consent	You can withdraw your consent to our processing of your personal data when such processing is based on consent. Where you withdraw your consent, this does not affect the lawfulness of our processing before your withdrawal. Please see the table in section “What personal data do we collect from you and how do we use it” specifically the column “What is our legal basis for processing your personal data?” to see where/when our processing is based on consent.
The right to object to processing based on legitimate interests	You may object at any time to our processing of your personal data when such processing is based on our legitimate interests. Please see the table in section “what personal data do we collect from you and how do we use it” specifically the column “What is our legal basis for processing your personal data?” to see where/when our processing is based on legitimate interests.

The right to restriction	This right means that our processing of your personal data is restricted, so we can store it, but not use nor process it further. It applies in the following limited circumstances set out in the General Data Protection Regulation: ● the accuracy of the personal data is contested by you, for a period enabling Digital Technologies to verify the accuracy of the personal data; ● the processing is unlawful and you object the erasure of your personal data and request Digital Technologies restrict the ways in which it processes your personal data; ● Digital Technologies no longer need your personal data for the purposes of its processing, but you require the personal data for the establishment, exercise or defence of legal claims; ● You object to Digital Technologies' processing of your personal data based Digital Technologies' legitimate interests, pending the verification whether the Digital Technologies' legitimate grounds override your rights and freedoms.
